Conversation Kept Secret ...

Astronauts Want Exerciser Use Cut

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab 1 astronauts, apparently feeling the effects of working in temperatures of more than 80 degrees, asked in an unusual secret conversation with space officials Tuesday that use of a bicycle exerciser aboard the orbiting space station be curtailed.

Mission Commander Charles Conrad Jr., who requested the confidential exchange, reportedly assured officials, however, that the crewmen are in "really good shape."

Rules for the space mission forbid private conversations except in case of emergency. Conrad apparently felt sufficiently concerned about the work load on himself and crewmates Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz to ask for the secret talk.

The space agency refused to release a transcript of the conversation, but in a report on it Conrad was quoted as saying that he and his crewmates would not be able to complete "the full protocol" on the bicycle device.

Temperatures hovered at 89 degrees in the Skylab compartment where the exerciser was used.

The secret conversation created a minor storm among some space agency officials.

"There was absolutely no justification for it," said one space agency executive. "Private conversations are supposed to be used only in the event of an emergency. I feel cut off at the knees."

Conrad later used the exerciser, with Kerwin monitoring, but the results of the test were sent down on a secret radio channel and newsmen were not permitted access to it.

Kerwin, in the only open report, said they were "doing better than yesterday." In the tightly censored account of the secret conversation, Conrad reportedly said "the thermal situation in Skylab had stabilized in the 80s and thought this would be okay for the rest of the mission" with the exception of use of the bicycle machine.

He said the device did not "ride" aboard Skylab as it did on the ground. Conrad also reportedly said he "was a little warm" during the night, but slept well.

The mission commander, in a highly unusual and seldom-used move, asked for the secret conversation on operational matters and only three men were permitted to hear the exchange. Those three were Dr. Christopher C. Kraft, the director of the Johnson Space Center; Donald K. Slayton, the chief of the astronauts; and Neil B. Hutchinson, a flight director.

Kerwin fired up Skylab's solar telescope for the first time Monday and beamed to earth on a television circuit a close-up view of the sun.

The solar disc appeared to have several light patches, which were possibly flares, and several dark areas, the so-called sun spots.

Eight sensors aboard the $121.2 million telescope will be used to probe the secrets of the sun's energy, a natural thermonuclear fusion factory which gives earth its heat and light. Scientists hope that data from the telescope, the first such device to be operated by man above the earth's atmosphere, might provide information on how man can harness fusion energy and produce pollution-free power for a world facing an energy crisis.

Teenage Runaways Face Variety Of Consequences

By NANCY HULVERSHORN

Star Staff Writer

Along the highways, beside the roads, you see them — the children of the '70s. Hitchhiking. Setting out for an adventure, or running away from a problem.

But what happens to these young nomads when the wandering is over, when the feet grow cold and tired, the wallet empty? What happens when the police catch up?

Though running away from home is not a major offense in Nebraska, the youth under 18 years of age is still violating a section of the Juvenile Court Act.

Can End In Jail
The teenager can find himself in a jail cell or behind locked doors in the county detention center.

He will certainly have to face his parents, and he will have to talk with a police officer and perhaps with juvenile probation officers. And he will begin or add to his juvenile record at police headquarters. The habitual runaway could wind up in a foster home, group home or institution like Cedars Home for Children in Lincoln.

"I didn't know what it was going to be like; I mean getting into trouble and all that," said one Lincoln runaway.

For the first offender who has committed no crime while running the procedure is relatively simple — a talk with police and parents before going home.

Lecture Given
"If it's their first time and it looks like they have good parents, we just talk with them on the dangers of hitchhiking or of taking a few drinks — how you give, in easier," explained Lincoln Policewoman Mrs. Hulda Roper, who often talks with the runaway girls.

And Mrs. Roper could give

proceedings. Teenagers who habitually run away are also taken into court and placed under "special supervision" (probation).

108 Juveniles
Last year 108 juveniles were found "in need of special supervision," though not all were runaways.

However, both Judge W. W. Nuernberger, Lancaster juvenile judge, and Bill Janike, chief juvenile probation officer, believe that the punitive approach is not the answer. They feel that getting to the root of the problem is more effective than punishment.

"If the problem the child is having can be helped by some other agency or person (rather than court action), well that's the way to do it," said Judge Nuernberger.

The judge is concerned about teenagers who run to sex or drugs. "I mean hard drugs," he emphasizes. And by promiscuous he means not just sexually active with a boyfriend or pregnant, but promiscuous "with anyone and everyone."

These are the young people he is more likely to refer to an institutional setting.

To Control Child
"We try to do what we can without detention, but if it's the only way, we will do it. It's not for punishment, but as a way to control the child so he or she won't go looking for drugs or sex," the judge explained.

While the teenager waits for a court appearance, reunion with parents or placement in a foster home, he may be housed in any of several places, including the county Youth Detention Center, jail for those over 16 years and the YMCA Freeway Station.

From August, 1971, through December, 1972, the Lancaster County Probation Office and the Lincoln City Police referred 110 runaways to the Freeway station, housed on the fourth floor of the YMCA.

The rooms at the Freeway Station are small, narrow and smell like a musty old hotel. Security is tight and young people cannot leave without a specific purpose.

But there is a television, record player and many games. And the staff of seven college students and young adults who rotate for the 24-hour supervision are warm and understanding.

Everyone from police to runaways has praise for the station, which was started as a part of the Youth Service System specifically to deal with the growing runaway problem.

"I'd like to go back there if they'd let," said one girl, now housed in Cedars Home for Children.

"They're doing a good job," said Mrs. Roper. "They're kind, but they don't let them get away with anything."

Canada Plans To Quit ICCS

. . . 60-Day Notice Given

SAIGON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho have agreed to a new peace plan that calls for Saigon and Viet Cong forces to stop shooting but apparently makes no proposal for ending the war in Cambodia, government sources said Tuesday.

South Vietnam has given its approval in principle to the new accord, Saigon sources reported, but has asked for some unspecified modifications.

Canada announced in Ottawa that it will withdraw its peacekeepers from the International Commission of Control and Supervision, charged with supervising the cease-fire. It was not immediately clear what effect the Canadian pullout would have on the reported Kissinger-Tho agreement, though the Canadians said they were giving the 60-day notice in an effort to remain on hand for the first days of the new pact's application.

The plan provides for an immediate halt to all American reconnaissance flights over North Vietnam and an end within 24 hours to hostilities between Saigon government forces and the Viet Cong.

According to government sources in Saigon, the timetable in the new plan goes like this:

Between five and 10 days after a cease-fire, Saigon and the Viet Cong will permit monitors from both sides to be deployed with their immunity guaranteed.

— In the same time period the United States will resume clearing mines from North Vietnamese waters and resume economic talks with Hanoi.

— Zones of control are to be demarcated within three months.

— Within six months a Council of National Reconciliation and Concord is to be established and the procedure set for national elections. Under terms of the original Paris agreement, this was supposed to have been accomplished by the end of April.

— Safety corridors are to be set up for personnel of one side to travel through the territory of the other.

— Step-by-step demobilization will be carried out by both sides.

— Both sides will establish points of entry for the replacement of war material on a one-for-one basis.

— All remaining military and civilian prisoners of war will be released.

There was no guarantee that the new pact, as reported by the sources here, would work any better than the original cease-fire. The rules for enforcement as described by the informants remain basically the same as in the Jan. 27 agreement.

But there are provisions in the new accord to facilitate the work of the International Commission of Control and Supervision and the Joint Military Commission composed of South Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations.

Perhaps even more significant were reports that Washington has applied pressure on President Nguyen Van Thieu to keep his side of the bargain.

U.S. military and economic aid keeps the Thieu regime afloat and gives plenty of levers for U.S. officials to apply.

U.S. economic aid was also seen as a factor in getting Hanoi to make the Viet Cong hold to their word. President Nixon has warned indirectly of retaliation bombing.

Kissinger Hopes For More Effective Truce

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's top Vietnam negotiator, held out hope Tuesday that "new understandings" with the North Vietnamese will make possible better observance of the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

He said that he and North Vietnamese negotiator Le Duc Tho will satisfactorily conclude discussions aimed at better implementation of the cease-fire provisions when they resume their discussions in Paris next week.

Kissinger also said that the lengthy negotiations held previously had included a very careful review of the cease-fire accords reached in January and the results were being discussed in Saigon and doubtless also in Hanoi.

"We expected that next week, when discussions resume, we will conclude them satisfactorily," Kissinger said at a White House briefing.

He pointed out, however, that a great deal depends on a willingness to observe the provisions that are under discussion.

Kissinger also expressed his regret that Canada has withdrawn from the International Control Commission "especially at this time, when we hope that out of the negotiations now going on in Paris an agreement that will be better implemented and that can be better implemented, because of various adjustments that will be made, will emerge."

He said he understood that Canada made its decision in the light of "many considerations including strong domestic opposition." He added "we regret it but we understand it."

Council Creates Unit To Study Committees

By LYNN ZERSCHLING

Star Staff Writer

The City Council Monday created a committee to work on the abolition of a number of other city committees and boards.

That action is one of the first steps taken by the city lawmakers as a step in implementing recommendations made in the Arthur D. Little study on consolidating city and county government.

Councilmen Steve Cook, Max Denney and Bob Sikyta were appointed to serve on the committee which also will be composed of members of the administration and the Charter Revision Committee.

Councilwoman Sue Bailey quipped, "I hope you realize that we just created another committee."

The 109-page study released last week makes a number of recommendations that both the city and county should take in preparation for total consolidation of services.

One of those recommendations is the creation of a City-County Implementation Commission to direct the consolidation efforts.

However, council members expressed reservations about the make-up of that commission and will meet with the County Board and Lincoln Foundation officials Thursday to discuss the matter.

The study recommends that membership on the commission be composed of a council member, the County Board chairman, the county attorney, the mayor and a representative from the Lincoln Foundation.

However, council members indicated they wanted wider citizen participation on that commission.

Cook said, "I think we can come up with something more workable than this."

Commenting on several other recommendations made in the $45,000 study, Cook said, "We can zero in on two or three items which were recommended — such as personnel, purchasing and the fiscal year."

"We can start on those right now."

The report suggests the city and county centralize personnel administration and develop uniform purchasing procedures. Additionally, the report recommends that the city switch its fiscal year from September to July to coincide with the county.

Denney commented, "We don't want this report to gather dust on the shelf — we have to get started now."

In other business at the morning work session the council directed City Atty. Dick Wood to prepare a report on the merits of holding night council meetings.

Councilman John Robinson brought up the subject of holding night meetings on a monthly basis to enable more working people to attend.

Councilman Dick Baker said the council needed more information on the pros and cons of holding such night meetings — including the cost and time involved.

Revenue Sharing Priorities Pondered

By GERRY SWITZER

Star Staff Writer

Whether forthcoming revenue sharing funds may be used for what the three commissioners felt should have top priority or for necessary funding of existing programs which have suffered federal funding cutbacks is the question before the county board.

After each of the commissioners had listed what they individually felt should receive first consideration for use of the initial one-fifth of the revenue sharing funds for the county this year, it was pointed out to maintain the ongoing program of the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation $409,133 in local funds would be needed.

LOMR Director Robert E. Smith told the board that this amount would be needed to continue present programming because of the changes in social service regulations at the federal level.

He pointed out that the cutbacks are most severe in the children's programs in which an anticipated 55 of the 62 children in the Human Development School will not be eligible to receive federal funds under the new regulations.

Smith also noted that none of the 31 children presently living in Life Skills Training Centers will qualify for federal funding.

He said that the $409,133 will only allow for continuation of the present programming and will not allow for additional services to the 73 people on the waiting list.

The commissioners authorized Smith to approach the City of Lincoln with a request for financial support for the program.

Jan Gauger, who had proposed additional staffing to provide for a fiscal analyst and social services planning as top priorities for revenue sharing funds, said she didn't feel that the county should be forced to use more than half of its revenue sharing allotment for the year to make up a deficit created by federal cutbacks.

She and the other commissioners agreed that when the revenue sharing act was passed it was agreed that federal programs would not be cut to require local spending of the revenue sharing funds to make up the deficit.

The other two commissioners indicated that they disagreed with Mrs. Gauger's proposed additional staffing for the funds but were more in favor of using the money for expansion of projects already under way.

Board Chairman Robert Colin said his first priority for the funds would be completion of the third phase of remodeling for Lancaster Manor while his second choice would be funds needed for the juvenile attention center.

Veteran Commissioner Kenneth Bourne listed widening the Superior Street bridge as first on his list with additional gravel for county roads and blacktopping of the south parking lot of the County-City Building as second and third on his list of priorities.

Since a decision on proposed use of the first one-fifth of the funds must be made in June, the commissioners agreed to discuss the matter further before Mrs. Gauger leaves June 1 for a month's vacation.

In other action, the board:

— Rejected an application of William McDonald for a bottle club license until word is received from the Hickman Village Board on zoning.

— Approved a request by Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. to cross county road.

— Approved resolution on Rural Water District No. 1.

— Deferred until budget time request by Southeast Health Planning Council for $10,000 in county funds for the 1973-74 fiscal year and request for funds for county users of Lincoln City Library.

— Deferred one week an application for a subdivision permit by the Pella Reformed Church.

— Approved an additional $100,000 cash reserve fund for LOMR.

President Won't Give Watergate Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate investigators, judicial and congressional, will get no testimony from President Nixon himself the White House said Tuesday.

"We feel it would be constitutionally inappropriate," said Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. "It would do violence to the separation of powers."

Ziegler said the ban applies to sworn testimony, informal statements and written responses to written questions.

The questions arose again after a story in the Washington Post quoted federal prosecutors as telling Justice Department superiors "there is justification for calling" the President before the federal grand jury.

Ziegler called the story "a shocking and irresponsible abuse of authority on the part of the federal prosecutors" if it is true. Ziegler said the White House has ordered an investigation of what he termed a leak of information

Senators Win
Skirmish Over
Bombing Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators seeking to cut off money for continued U.S. bombing of Cambodia won a procedural test vote Tuesday over objections by President Nixon's allies that the move would jeopardize new Vietnam peace efforts.

The action cleared the way for Senate approval, probably Wednesday, of a sweeping amendment that goes far beyond the House limitation on Indochina funds voted two weeks ago.

The vote was 55 to 21 on a motion by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., chief sponsor of the amendment, that it was a proper restriction under Senate rules.

Two Vote Against

dealing with a grand jury investigation.

Nothing in the Constitution grants immunity to a president. He may be summoned to court and is liable to arrest.

Ziegler said J. Fred Buzhardt Jr., a special White House counsel, telephoned Gen. Elliot L. Richardson Monday night to investigate the source of the Post's report.

Richardson was ordered to take appropriate action with the aim of seeing "it doesn't happen again."

Buzhardt also contacted special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox to express the White House's "very severe concern." Ziegler said, adding that Buzhardt had acted "immediately and automatically on his own," rather than on Nixon's orders.

In federal court Tuesday, Roy Sheppard was granted immunity for his testimony before the Senate committee which resumes its televised hearings June 5. Sheppard is the trucking company employee who removed cartons of documents from the White House after the Watergate break-in last year, reportedly on orders.

At a White House briefing Tuesday, Henry A. Kissinger acknowledged his office supplied the names of Kissinger aides to be tapped in an investigation of news leaks in 1969.

"It was legal, it followed regular procedures and it followed established criteria," the President's national security adviser told newsmen.

Kissinger, responding to a question, said he does not intend to resign because of controversy surrounding his role in the matter. As to the damage to his own credibility, Kissinger replied: "I'm not the best judge of my own credibility."

Pompidou Talks Aim To Lift
'Atlantic Debate Out Of Rut'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will seek in talks with French President Georges Pompidou to "lift the Atlantic debate out of the rut of purely technical controversy" and set a framework for building a new U.S.-European relationship, Henry A. Kissinger said Tuesday.

The presidential assistant spoke with newsmen on the eve of Nixon's departure for Iceland and a two-day summit with the French leader at Reykjavik. He said he does not expect final decisions on such issues as trade and the monetary crisis to be reached at the talks.

"The outcome is more likely to be a general sense of direction than detailed solutions," said Kissinger, Nixon's chief foreign affairs adviser.

The President is scheduled to leave Andrews Air Force Base, Md., near Washington, about mid-morning Wednesday for the 5 1/2-hour flight to Iceland.

On the day before his departure, Nixon held a series of meetings on foreign policy issues ranging from the Vietnam and Middle East situations to U.S. relations with Latin America.

Emerging from one of the meetings, John Scali, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said Nixon believes the key to a Mideast settlement "is the start of a serious negotiating process, whether direct or indirect, between the parties."

Scali said Nixon is giving high priority to the Mideast. And he stressed that the President believes the most practical way to reach a settlement is to follow the November 1967 Security Council resolution.

The Security Council will open debate on the Mideast situation next week, and Scali said the United States would oppose any effort to substantially alter the 1967 resolution.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers reported to Nixon on his just-concluded 17-day Latin American tour and also briefed Republican and Democratic congressional leaders on his trip.

Rogers said nationalistic feelings he encountered during his visit do not carry anti-American overtones. He said that contrary to some news reports "there was not one hostile act" directed toward him during his visit.

Rogers went to Mexico, Nicaragua, Venezuela, Peru, Colombia, Brazil, Argentina and Jamaica.

Federal Gas Tax Hike Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury George P. Shultz said Tuesday the administration is considering an increase on the federal tax on gasoline.

While Shultz didn't say so, it was understood from other sources that one reason for a tax increase would be to raise prices in order to try to drive down gasoline demand and consumption.

Sources said the government has been discussing possible increases ranging from one to 10 cents a gallon. The present federal tax is 4 cents, but state and local assessments bring about a considerably higher tax bite.

It is estimated that a penny rise in the federal tax would bring an additional $1 billion in federal revenue.

Shultz indicated no decision has been made on a gasoline tax increase, saying it has both "pluses and minuses" and is "one of the many things we are reviewing all the time." He said in answer to a question that debate also is going on over other tax increases as a possible means of slowing the economy, but again indicated no final decision has been made.

Shultz and other administration spokesmen discussed government economic policy at a White House seminar for newspaper, magazine and broadcast business and financial writers.

The presentation of the Nixon administration's economic views came against a background of a new indication that the country's economic boom may be slowing a bit.

The government's composite index of leading indicators declined by .6 per cent in April, the first decline in 30 months. The index includes eight categories of business performance and is seen as foreshadowing broad movements in the economy. The April decline followed a 1.6 per cent increase in March and was led by a sharp drop in building permits, one of the eight categories. Other indicators that were down were initial claims for unemployment insurance, new orders for durable goods, contracts and orders for plant and equipment, the price-labor cost ratio and stock prices.

Only two indicators, average work week and industrial materials prices, increased. The index in April stood at 161.5 per cent of the 1967 base figure of 100.

Building permits were off for the fourth straight month and were 25 per cent below December levels. Government economists acknowledged it was a "spectacular decline" in building permits but said over-all index figures were only preliminary and not conclusive as far as forecasting future economic performance.

Bulk Fuel Contracts Are Not Drawing Bids

By The Associated Press
Cities and states around the country are finding their once prized contracts for bulk fuel supplies are going begging as a result of the gas shortage.

Urban transit authorities have also been hard hit. Unless it can get more fuel, the Minneapolis Transit Commission may have to curtail service.

As annual fuel contracts expire, some administrators have been forced to accept a single bid or negotiate for new pacts. Either way, prices are going up, sometimes at an alarming rate.

Los Angeles County accepted its only bid on gas at a 67 per cent price increase. Dallas County in Texas will pay 50 per cent more for fuel under its new contract. The State of Maine got one bid on fuel for its vehicles at a price increase of 6 cents a gallon. That will cost an additional $500,000 a year but state purchasing agent Linwood F. Ross says, "We were lucky to get even one bid."

Rhode Island opened eight envelopes and found only polite notes instead of bids. State procurement officer Frederick G. Harlow Jr. said they were negotiating a new pact with Gulf Oil Co., the present supplier.

The American Transit Association surveyed 90 city transit companies and found one-third reported that they had received fuel curtailment notices. Most have not had to reduce service yet, however.

Plans Unveiled For JFK Library

BOSTON (AP) — Plans were unveiled on Tuesday for the John F. Kennedy Library, a pyramid-shaped building that will hold the papers and memorabilia of the late president.

Construction of the $27 million complex is scheduled to begin next year across the street from Harvard University in Cambridge, where Kennedy went to college.

The late president's daughter, Caroline, and his brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., participated in the unveiling ceremony.

The focal point of the 12-acre complex is to be a seven-story pyramid with two glass walls. A separate long, low building will be around three sides of the pyramid.

The architect, I.M. Pei, said the complex has been designed to blend with the nearby brick dormitories of Harvard.

The buildings will face the Charles River and the Harvard playing fields on the opposite shore in Boston. They will also house Harvard University's Institute of Politics and Kennedy School of Government.

Court: Public Issue Ads Can Be Refused

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radio and television stations may flatly refuse to sell commercial time for statements on public issues, a divided Supreme Court held Monday.

The court voted 7-2 to reverse a panel of circuit judges that ruled a flat ban on paid public issue announcements violated the First Amendment if other kind of paid announcements were accepted.

The justices, however, differed more widely on just why the lower court was in error. The decision left open the possibility that some type of guaranteed access to the air waves could win support from the high court.

Two justices, William O. Douglas and Potter Stewart, decided that the First Amendment prohibited, rather than required, any government-mandated access.

The remainder who made up the majority, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, and Justices Byron R. White, Harry Blackmun, Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist did not go that far.

In other actions Tuesday, the court:

—Held that congressional employees not directly linked to the legislative process may be held responsible for publications of such things as a congressional report which contains libelous material.

—Allowed to stand a ruling that the United Mine Workers must pay the legal fees of the lawyer who represented the late Joseph A. Yablonski and his associates in several lawsuits against the union.

The broadcast dispute reached the court in the context of partisan politics and opposition to the Vietnam War.

The Democratic National Committee in 1970 requested that the Federal Communications Commission compel broadcasters to sell time to "responsible entities" for comment on public issues. In a second case, a group called Business Executives Move for Vietnam Peace challenged the refusal of WOP radio and television here to provide one-minute antiwar announcements.

The commission ruled for the broadcasters, including the Columbia Broadcasting System and the American Broadcasting Co. who were also involved, thus setting the stage for the circuit court ruling.

Burger and Rehnquist, with Stewart noting his concurrence, found that a concept of journalistic independence that has grown up in broadcasting could not coexist with a finding that actions of a licensed broadcaster constituted government action in violation of the First Amendment.

A broader majority, including Burger, White, Blackmun, Powell and Rehnquist, went on to say that federal legislation regulating broadcasting provided "rights" of access to the air waves.

Congress, wrote Burger, left it

POW Chief Accuses 8 Of Collaboration

WASHINGTON (AP) — A commander of U.S. prisoners of war formally accused eight young enlisted men Tuesday of collaborating with the North Vietnamese while in captivity.

Col. Theodore W. Guy filed formal charges against the five Army men and three Marines, alleging their misconduct while he was the senior American in a POW camp outside Hanoi known as the "Plantation."

The Pentagon has followed a general policy of allowing the issue of alleged misbehavior among the 566 returned military POWs to die quietly.

Guy, of Tucson, Ariz., has said that some POWs obtained special privileges by telling the North Vietnamese of the activities of the other prisoners. In some cases other POWs were tortured as a result of the alleged collaboration, according to Guy.

Guy filed a number of charges, including aiding the enemy, failure to obey orders and conspiracy.

The three Marines charged were Sgt. Abel L. Kavanaugh of Westminster, Colo.; Staff Sgt. Alfonso E. Riate, of Santa Rosa, Calif.; and Pvt. Frederick L. Elbert, Jr., of Brentwood, N.Y.

Late Tuesday the Army identified the five Army men as:

Spec. 4 Michael P. Branch, 26, of Highland Heights, Ky.; S. Sgt. Robert P. Chenoweth, 25, of Portland, Ore.; Sgt. James A. Daly Jr. of Brooklyn, N.Y.; S. Sgt. King D. Rayford, 27, of Chicago, Ill.; and S. Sgt. John A. Young, 27, Grayslake, Ill.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

When it comes to lousing up a long holiday weekend, man has to take second place to nature. One would have to be a pretty disgruntled and disagreeable cuss to dampen the enthusiasm of the past weekend for others to quite the degree the weather did.

One poor slob was supposed to cook hamburgers out on the grill on Sunday afternoon. The climate had been so obnoxious for so long already that the family still wanted the grilled burgers. So, there was nothing to do but don a raincoat, light up the grill and get on with it.

Sunday afternoon was also fun day at one of the local schools. Imagine the consternation of the fun day chairman who picked that afternoon of heavy clouds and rain for the school's big annual fund-raising event.

But, at least the long weekend was a break in the routine of things and since so little could be done because of rain, everyone returned to work on Tuesday well rested. Among other things, this short week will end, presumably, with the adjournment of the State Legislature.

One of the more interesting aspects of these dying days of the Unicameral has been the move to reduce the state income tax on a retroactive basis. That means that the rate would go down a couple of percentage points as of Jan. 1, 1973.

Of course, if you are on withholding, you have already paid the higher state income tax rate and might continue to do so for the remainder of the year. What it would amount to is a much larger refund to taxpayers in 1974 than would otherwise be the case.

If Gov. J. James Exon was quoted correctly, he sees such an action by the Legislature as "irresponsible." His position will no doubt be described as "political" by his opponents in the GOP ranks.

The reasoning is that Exon wants a tax reduction in 1974, the year he will be up for re-election. Well, if Exon is the good politician everyone credits him with being, he is either not being political at this time or has made a political question of the decision.

If all he is looking for is the best deal personally in 1974, he could do a lot worse than take the retroactive income tax cut. That would mean people's getting a good refund in the election year and that might be better than a 1974 reduction.

A refund is a bird in the hand while a reduction is a sort of two in the bush. At best, the '74 reduction would be felt in smaller amounts weekly deducted from the pay checks of working men and women.

But a refund could amount to $25, $50 or $100 or more all in one lump sum, depending upon the level of your income and the amount of taxes you paid on it.

Politics aside, we remain curious as to why the governor would want a tax reduction that could be granted in 1973 delayed until 1974. There is some reference to the possibility of a cut now jeopardizing a lower rate for 1974 but this doesn't seem to make a lot of sense.

The state has collected or is collecting millions of dollars more in 1973 than will be needed to meet all appropriation demands. On the surface, it would seem that the unexpected growth in sales and income tax income would be sufficient, even at a reduced rate, to fund the modest 1973-74 state budget.

Again on the political side, the governor has been plenty tough on the Legislature this session. He has pulled no punches and, amazingly, has appeared to beat senators down in most instances. He has been a slugger rather than a boxer and it has paid off for him in getting what he wants and avoiding what he dislikes.

New Era In Catholicism Opened With Pope John

WASHINGTON — "History will judge that he opened a new era for the church and that he laid the foundations for the transition from the 20th to the 21st Century," asserted Leo Joseph Cardinal Suenens of Belgium. The cardinal was referring, of course, to Pope John XXIII, who died a decade ago.

Not much was expected of John when he was elected pope in 1958. Clergy and laymen alike viewed him as an interim pontiff who would shortly give way to a younger man who would rule for a decade or more. It is true that John served only four and one-half years as spiritual leader of the Roman Catholic Church. In that short period, however, he made an extraordinary impression on both Catholics and non-Catholics.

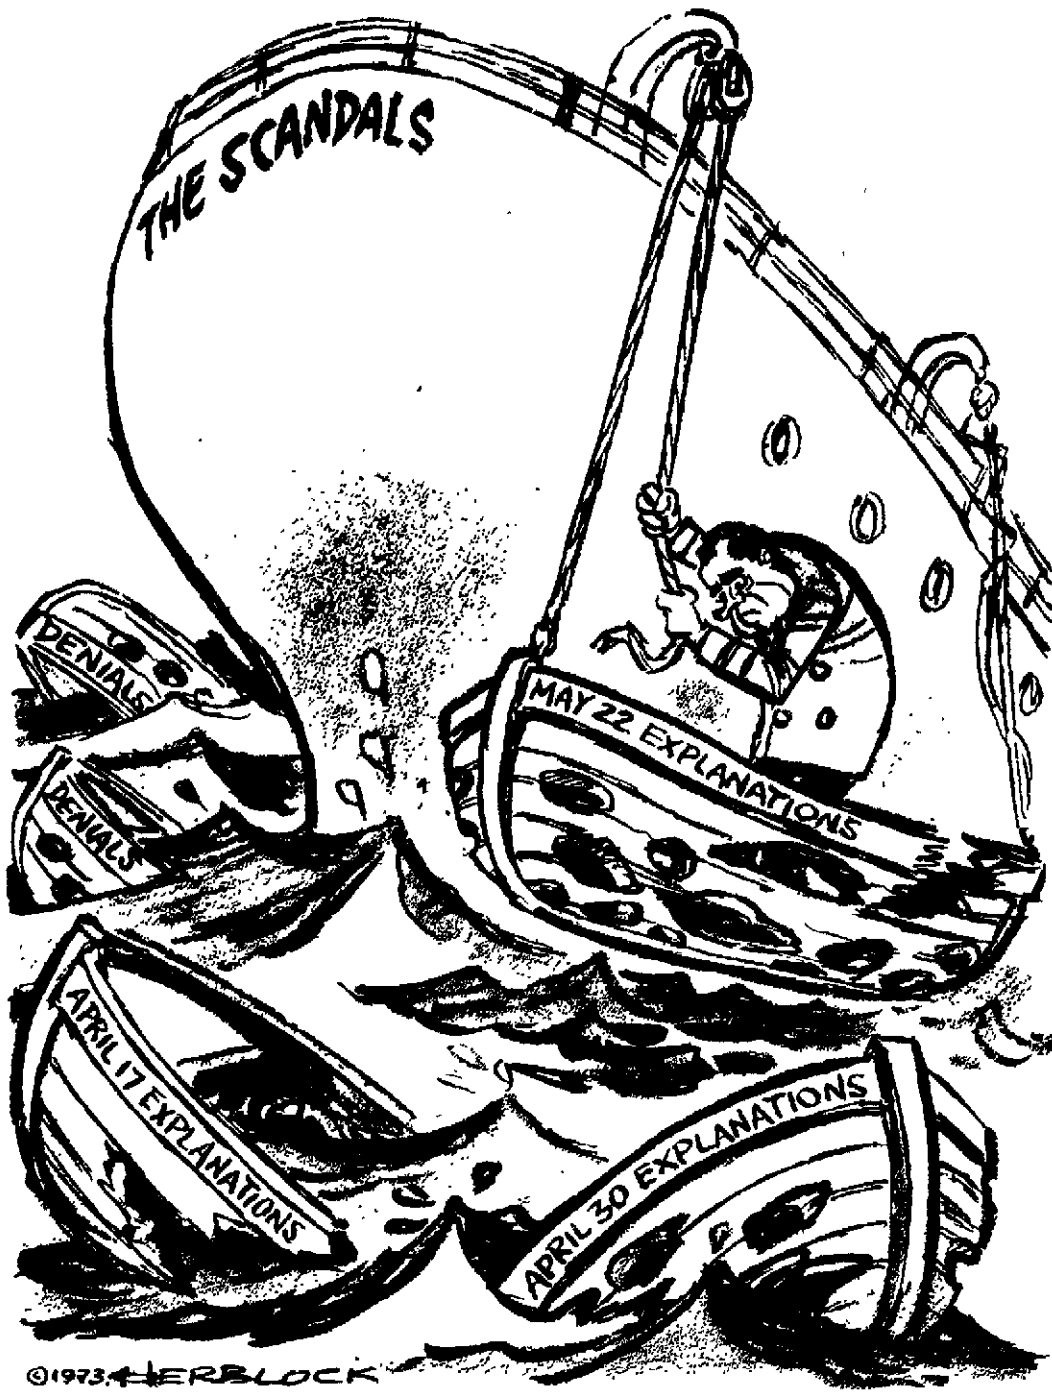

People of all faiths were captivated by John's warm, outgoing personality, which stood in sharp contrast to the austere men of his predecessor, Pope Pius XII. But John had more than a sunny disposition going for him. His posthumous reputation rests upon Vatican II, the ecumenical council that he announced barely three months after his election.

Vatican II, which began in October, 1962, and lasted until December, 1965, helped to ease strains in the relations between the Roman Catholic and other churches. At the same time, though, it contributed in certain ways to a heightening of tensions within Catholicism. The tensions continue to plague the church to this day.

The loosening of traditional autocratic controls within the Catholic church initially was hailed as one of the council's major accomplishments. Today, many of the faithful are not so sure. Assessing the impact of Vatican II, editor Joseph Cunniffe wrote: "The candid observer of the American Catholic scene today is caught between giving reassurance to his favorite saint that the middle-aged priest who was just laicized may well have acted out of a profound sense of fidelity to Christ, and asking romantic reformists of whatever age to provide alternatives when they talk bravely of 'not needing institutional structures' and of 'not caring what bishops say.'"

Spring Can Be Unpleasant

The death-dealing winds and heavy rains that hit much of the nation over the Memorial Day weekend were savage reminders that spring is not all that gentle.

The weather this spring has already played havoc with Nebraska farmers and the latest rain offensive promises renewed lowland flooding. It has its cosmetic effect, however. The state looks as green and moist as a tropical paradise. The chain of lakes along the Interstate Highway has numerous temporary additions which are pleasing to the eyes.

In the high country of the Colorado Rocky Mountains, however, winter is reluctant to let go. After a stretch from the late October blizzards through March, which the locals say was fairly uneventful, winter struck with full and unexpected fury in April and is still assaulting the Front range in Rocky Mountain National Park as May draws to an end.

For only the second or third time since it was completed forty-some years ago, Trail Ridge Road, which goes over the continental divide from Estes Park to Grand Lake, was not open by Memorial Day. The "Hands Across the Nation" ceremony which traditionally opens the road and heralds the advent of the tourist season was delayed until this coming weekend by 11 inches of new snow last Friday and Saturday.

The resort town of Estes Park was not as alive and full this Memorial holiday as it usually is and the lack of normal tourist volumes can probably be attributed to the weather and concern over the gas shortage.

Flatlanders who enjoy their infrequent walks in the mountains had to be content with lower elevations as blowing snow and freezing winds made hikes to the higher lakes unpleasant. Ice formed in the beaver ponds and backwaters and the buds on leafy trees were frozen shut.

Dry, warm weather will be as welcome in the high country as it will be in the plains.

Clouds Over The Summit

Preparing for new rounds of talks with other world leaders, President Nixon finds his popularity and confidence ratings with the American people at their lowest ebb. In the latest development in the Watergate scandal, investigators say that the President should be called upon to testify about alleged cover-up activities in the White House. Which means that his part in it will be even more open to question.

Thus the President goes to Iceland today to meet with President Pompidou of France and in three weeks entertains Soviet Party Chairman Brezhnev under a cloud that grows darker by the day.

The American people can't really be blamed if their attitudes toward these developments are confused.

Those who have lost confidence in Nixon because of the Watergate disclosures, those who have faithfully supported him and are pained by the recent events and those who thought they knew all along that he was corrupt and now are enjoying their vindication, all are represented by Mr. Nixon at the summit.

Because of the attitudes prevailing among the ruling hierarchy in the Soviet Union, attitudes which dictate a new policy of accommodation and conciliation as demonstrated by Brezhnev in West Germany recently, a unique opportunity for a change for the better in east-west relationships exists.

Nixon has himself demonstrated a capacity to forge better relationships. His style might have fostered Watergate in part, but it is also his style that has brought about the change in the international atmosphere. If he is to enlarge on these beginnings, he won't be helped by a hostile public at home. The people are going to have to separate Watergate from international politics.

Henry Reaches 50

NEW YORK — Friends of Henry Kissinger gave a party for him on the occasion of his 50th birthday the other night.

Not everybody came — these days, even Frank Sinatra thinks twice about being seen in the company of administration officials — but many of those who did come to New York's Colony Club were the glamorously powerful and the powerfully glamorous, and they wanted to salute an authentic American hero midpoint in his first century.

Henry's 50th year was his most eventful; in the last three months especially, his fortunes have taken a wild roller coaster ride, and surcease is not at hand.

Riding high after the signing of the peace agreement, he had reason to hope that an end to hostilities abroad would bring a beginning of reconciliation at home, but this was not to be.

At first, Watergate did not turn Henry's roller coaster downward; paradoxically, he seemed headed higher than ever, since men like Kissinger — as well as George Shultz and John Connally — were pointed to as men close to Nixon who were untouched by charges of complicity.

Then along came revelations that Henry had known about, or tolerated, or did not vigorously oppose, or perhaps even asked for an unprecedented 20-month program of wiretapping 17 aides and newsmen.

Down went the roller coaster, greased by slippery-sounding explanations that Henry only went along with the tapping for the protection of the tapes. Since the presumption of innocence was so long denied so many members of his staff and of the press, the burden of proof is now on Henry to show why he did not put a halt to the wiretap proliferation, which strong objection from him would surely have done. He may have a persuasive answer — at least two staffers and one newsmen, whose telephones had been tapped were among those who toasted him on his birthday last night — but he has not put the answers forth publicly.

For a while, it seemed that Henry might be dragged down by the "linkage" with political burglaries he had nothing to do with. To prevent this, his emphasis has been to define and separate (1) the wiretapping he went along with to stop casualty-causing leaks, and (2) the excesses of political warfare that were outside his purview.

Assuming he can build a firewall between the campaign to stop the leaks and the campaign to stop the Democrats, Kissinger will then have the task of defending his role in the overkill used in stopping leaks. A lot of people who fervently believe in the New Federalism, the work ethic and the Nixon doctrine get off the bus at the notion of tapping the telephones of reporters.

There are signs that the coaster's roll may be bottoming out: the television networks, by rotating coverage of the Ervin hearings, are saying that daytime viewers are more interested in "As The World Turns" than in "As The White House Burns", and despite massive coverage of corruption, most people tell pollsters they are more concerned with the cost of living.

If Kissinger does retain what he calls his "moral authority" in the face of unfair links with scandal and quite fair questions about decisions to wiretap to stop security leaks, the Kissinger experience will teach a lesson to White House aides for generations to come: that a passion for anonymity does not always serve the president, and that years of accessibility to influential newsmen — in backgrounders and birthday parties — is like money in the bank, enabling the prudent depositor to obtain shelter, or at least a sympathetic hearing, on rainy days.

The Taxpayers' Timber

WASHINGTON — Our national forests, with 92 million acres of timberland, provide a refuge for a variety of wild creatures and a recreation area for the populace. Americans by the tens of millions roam the federal woods each year.

They may be interested in a revealing, two-inch stack of documents, intended for official eyes only. These show that the Nixon administration is selling off a staggering 11.8 billion board feet of the taxpayers' timber.

Yet at the same time, the administration is reducing the money and manpower needed to prevent the cut-off from becoming a fire hazard. In the cautious language of bureaucrats, the memos warn that the untreated slash could turn into tinder and create dangers of massive forest fires.

The Forest Service is trying, Watergate style, to suppress the incriminating memos. An "Early Warning Alert" has been circulated, cautioning that the memos are "privileged information" and must be withheld from the public. All federal employees are sternly forbidden from releasing "this information unless or until released to the public by the Department." The Natural Resources Defense Council, for instance, is pressing for action.

Nevertheless, we will publish the highlights and make the full texts available to any group interested in saving our forests.

The timber toll of 11.8 billion board feet was approved by the Cost of Living Council under political pressure from the lumber industry and economic pressure from the construction boom. The suppressed memos promise even "higher output goals in 1974 and 1975."

Yet the memos tell how the Forest Service, which is supposed to manage our national forests, is caught in a budget squeeze. Its funds are being slashed by $106 million, its full-time work force reduced from 20,400 to 18,810.

Forest Service chief John McGuire described the problem in a confidential wire to his regional directors. The timber cutting "is 18% higher" than in 1972, he reported. "Additional funding and manpower will be required... to achieve the 18% increase." He solicited their views.

From vast region nine, which stretches from the North Atlantic states to Iowa, came a blunt response from Fire Control Chief Edward Hielman.

"Comes an increase in fire exposure due to the harvesting activity itself, post-sale slash treatment, and subsequent public use of areas containing untreated slash. Obviously, an increase in fire protection is in order if we are to avoid immediate and long-term future reductions in our timber supply."

This was echoed by Regional Forester Max Peterson in Atlanta's Region Eight, which covers all the southern states. Fund reductions "may be serious," he warned. "We don't know at this point how much of our goal this will place in jeopardy."

In other areas, the foresters predicted they would have to fall back on the wasteful practice of "clearcutting" to meet the 11.8 billion board feet goal.

Boostered by these replies, McGuire and his men began drafting some memos of their own. One for the White House, itself, says tentatively that "additional funds are needed... if fall-off timber... is to be prevented." The memo warns "the 1975 goals cannot be sustained."

Some foresters tried to take their complaints up to Capitol Hill. This brought some sharp "specific guidance" from the White House to the Agriculture Department, which has jurisdiction over the Forest Service.

In a private April 2 memo, Assistant Agriculture Secretary Robert Long wrote to the Forest Service chief:

"The President expects (you) actively to support the budget... This support should be given in testimony before congressional committees; in informal contacts with Members of Congress and their staffs, and in speeches and meetings with outside groups."

Nevertheless, McGuire told us honestly: "I cannot legally say to the loggers, here is the National Forest, help yourself." A final decision on the 11.8 billion board feet, meanwhile, awaits White House action.

Footnote: The timber barons contributed not only to President Nixon's campaign but to several congressional campaigns. Democrats and Republicans alike received generous donations. Among them were past and present Congressmen Don Clausen, R-Calif., John Dellenback, R-Ore., John McMillan, D-S.C., Arnold Olsen, D-Mont., Sam Steiger, R-Ariz., and Al Ullman, D-Ore. To make it easier to slip money to congressmen, the industry once formed a "99 Club" for making $99 donations, just under the legal $100 limit for identifying donors by name. For special friends like House GOP leader Gerry Ford, the industry once provided him with a company jet. The National Forest Products Association and three other associated lobbies also laid out a lavish booze and buffet reception for Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz shortly before his confirmation.

Lancaster Manor

Lincoln, Neb.
As chairman of the Lancaster County Board, I would like to answer the "Concerned Taxpayer's" letter to the editor in the May 23 Star.

Everyone, I am sure, realizes the many problems confronted when attempting to remodel an old building. Remodeling of an old building such as Lancaster Manor to meet federal and state regulations for a nursing home is double your trouble. Lancaster Manor administrator, Mr. Jerry Gibson, his staff members, and the County Board are deeply concerned regarding the health, safety and welfare of not only the manor residents but employees as well.

After receiving a copy of the complaint filed by the disgruntled former employee, mentioned by the concerned taxpayer, the County Board immediately by letter requested an inspection of Lancaster Manor by the Nebraska State OSHA Office to confirm the filed complaints and to advise the County Board of any other unsafe situations that might be present.

In answer to the concerned taxpayer's question with reference to the large turnover of personnel — on Jan. 1, the County Board returned the administration of Lancaster Manor to the county, under the direct supervision of the County Board. All employees, including staff members who were not performing their duties in the best interest of the residents' health and welfare were either discharged or asked to resign. Several staff members and employees resigned, knowing they were going to be discharged.

Lancaster Manor administrator, Mr. Jerry Gibson, Mrs. Sonya Maul, director of nursing, and the County Board welcome all complaints regarding all phases of operation at the manor and assure the taxpayers they will be given prompt attention.

Teachers' Role

Lincoln, Neb.

In response to the letter, "Picking The Best," in the May 24 Star, the nominations of Lincoln teachers to be considered for the "Outstanding Elementary Teachers of America Award for 1973" were made by the respective principals in each of the Lincoln public schools. They are selected on the basis of professional and civic achievements. Each teacher who is nominated fills out a resume of his or her activities and sends it in for evaluation.

"Informed Parent" really seems to fear parents' interfering with the sphere of influence rightfully belonging to a teacher. This seems to infer that a teacher should be some sort of dictator immune from the wishes of the parents of those children he is employed to instruct.

"New fads in education" are an attempt to change educational methods to more nearly conform to a changing world. All our institutions have similar problems. To oppose or support all change is equally absurd.

Undoubtedly there are many fine teachers who deserve recognition who have never received it. Apparently the letter-writer would like to have the students sit still and shut up. Maybe we should hire ex-boxers as bouncers instead of hiring administrators.

Here is an opportunity to honor a few teachers doing an excellent job, so we turn it into an opportunity to level outrageous charges against no one in particular. If this is an example of how we treat our hard-working, industrious teachers, it is not surprising that many talented persons never enter the occupation.

Ravenna, Neb.
The story about Winfield Franklin running 75 miles on his recent birthday is an inspiration to all of us. Three years ago I read about another senior citizen who walked 80 miles on his 80th birthday. Both Mr. Hyde of Binghamton, New York, and Mr. Franklin of Bayonne, New Jersey, are avid disciples of health and users of vitamins. Mr. Franklin reportedly takes 150 vitamin tablets daily.

Would you believe that the FDA will in 1974 make it necessary for them to get a prescription to buy many of their vitamins?

I recently asked Congressman Dave Martin to co-sponsor the Hosmer bill which would forbid this illegal and illogical act by the FDA. He replied that "co-sponsoring of bills means absolutely nothing" and he does not co-sponsor any legislation. Congressman Charles Thone is one of the 73 congressmen as of March 24 who agreed to co-sponsor the bill as a result of thousands of letters from citizens who believe this edict of the FDA huts hard at God-given freedoms.

The food industry is sensitive about anyone's suggesting that their product has lost some original value. With this edict of the FDA, they could push their foodless foods.

The Hosmer bill is HR 643. Letters to Dave Martin might help persuade him to join Charles Thone and other congressmen.

South, Midwest Face Cleanup

By The Associated Press

Clean up, dig out and rebuild. The pattern was familiar for many residents of the South and Midwest who faced new problems Tuesday in the wake of tornadoes that struck widespread areas, including some crippled by earlier flood damage.

President Nixon declared Alabama and Arkansas major disaster areas because of the storms that left 48 dead in 11 states, injured hundreds of people and caused damage in the millions of dollars. Arkansas was one of seven states declared disaster areas earlier because of the spring floods.

The National Weather service said that 277 tornadoes were reported in four days over the eastern half of the nation. It said the situation was eased Tuesday. A tornado watch remained in effect during the morning, however, for parts of Florida, Georgia and South Carolina.

Gov. Dale Bumpers, in asking Nixon to declare his state a disaster area, estimated that damage from the tornadoes was almost $35 million. He said he saw water several inches deep in fields almost all the way from Jonesboro to Little Rock, a distance of 133 miles. "What this will do to the farmers depends on how fast it drains off," he said.

Normally at this time of year, the entire cotton and rice crop is in the ground. Because of the floods, however, only 65 per cent of the cotton and 85 per cent of the rice had been planted by last week.

Homeowners in southern Illinois also faced problems. Up to three feet of mud accumulated in some buildings in Elco, a community of 150, after nine inches of rain fell in an hour.

A school at Diswood, also in southern Illinois, was filled with mud. "Even the school's cafeteria ovens were packed," an official said.

ACTION LINE

Or Write P.O. Box 81669, Lincoln, NE 68501

Our daughter is now on long-term kidney dialysis and there is a good probability that we will be securing a home dialysis unit for her within the next year. Where can we write to secure additional information concerning this machine?

—J. R., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: According to a spokesman with the dialysis unit at St. Elizabeth's there are two companies you could write to for additional information.

The two are: Cobe Laboratories, 1201 Oak St., Lakewood, Colorado, 80215; and Travenol Laboratories Inc., Artificial Organs Division, 6301 Lincoln Avenue, Morton Grove, Illinois, 60053

Can ACTION LINE help me to locate where I might be able to rent a metal detector to use in my yard?

M.E., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Apparently the closest place to rent one is Omaha.

At least two Omaha rental agencies have metal detectors on hand. They are Keenans Rent All, 2626 N. 84th, Omaha, 68134 and United Rent All, 4423 So. 84th St., Omaha, 68137.

Spokesmen for the two firms indicated they each had one in stock, and that the use of the equipment varied. They said the most common uses were to locate lost rings and other jewelry, or to help locate buried boundary stakes for lots.

ACTION LINE UPDATE: Gates Minnick, a spokesman for a local car dealer, had some comments on the removal of emission control devices (ACTION LINE May 23).

Minnick noted that while it would be legal for a private individual to remove the device under present law, a dealer would have to reinstall it before the vehicle could be sold again, so the removal would cut down on the resale value of your car.

In addition, Minnick said there would be a possibility that tampering with the device could have an adverse effect on the car's warranty.

ACTION LINE notes there is pending federal legislation that would also make it illegal for a private individual to remove an emission control device.

The plant I work for provides hot lunches in its own cafeteria for employees. However, the women serving the food don't seem to follow any health rules. They don't wear hair nets and they are constantly licking their fingers. Would this lunch room have to follow the same rules as a public cafe, and if so where can I complain?

—Nauseated, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Dr. George Underwood, Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Dept. director, said a company cafeteria very definitely has to abide by health rules.

He noted that a cafeteria such as this would also have to have a license, and would have to meet the health standards to get the license.

Any complaints should be lodged with the Food Division of the Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Dept.

Sand and dirt are making the intersection at 50th and L St. a hazardous situation for the school children at Hawthorne. We called the street department once and haven't gotten a response, what can ACTION LINE do for us?

—Concerned Parents, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: We contacted Lloyd Bomberger, superintendent of the street department, about the situation and he said that he had been unaware of it.

Bomberger said a crew would be out very soon to clean up the intersection. He noted that the crews clean by territory and they could have missed that intersection last time, or else rain may have washed the sand into the street after the crew went through.

I sent $10.18 to the Sunset House in California for some merchandise in January, but I haven't heard from them since. Can you help me either get a refund of my money or have the order sent to me?

—Mrs. R.R., York

ACTION LINE: Apparently your order was lost enroute, and now that the company has been notified you can expect a refund.

Helen Olshan, with the firm's customer relations division, said the refund will be arriving in about 10 days. She indicated that new catalogues have been sent out since the time of your order and it would be possible for you to reorder, once you have received your refund.

I returned some merchandise to the Homeward House and asked for a refund, but they sent me a second shipment which I hadn't asked for. Can ACTION LINE help me get my refund since the company hasn't answered my letters?

—Mrs. G.S., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: We contacted the firm's customer relations division and a spokeswoman indicated your account will be looked into immediately.

Mrs. Marie Crossley said that it would take several days for her to check the computer files, so it will be a week to 10 days before you receive your refund and a letter from the company.

School Board Unofficially OKs Northeast Additions

Wednesday, May 30, 1973 The Lincoln Star 13

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer
The Lincoln Board of Education Tuesday gave unofficial approval to architects' preliminary drawings of an addition at Northeast High School.

Since the board was meeting informally, it couldn't take official action on the proposals.

But the board said it was pleased with the plan termed by Supt. John Prasch as an ingenious design for the Northeast expansion.

Prasch said the firm of Bahr, Hanna, Vermeer and Haeccker had apparently accomplished what he believed couldn't be done — a design which ties the addition directly into building traffic patterns, leaves unchanged present parking and recreational areas and provides for new shop space.

Three Additions
The design actually calls for construction of three additions to the building, one at each of three corners.

A suite of science rooms would be added to the southeast corner of the building, tying directly into the school's main hallway.

At the other end of the hallway, on the northeast corner, a new swimming pool would be constructed and a new entrance built, solving a problem with a little-used entrance at that location.

Shops Underneath
And on the northeast corner, a new gymnasium would tie directly into the current gym, leaving adequate space underneath for shops with handy ground-level entrances on the west side.

The new shop area would be an unexpected by-product of the design, since directions to the architect called for no new shop areas.

But the architects have proposed the addition in such a way to consolidate all dressing room facilities in use area under the old gym, moving shops from those areas into the space under the new one.

Prasch also noted that the location for the new pool will require the least excavation of any on the Northeast site, and he said the total design would actually improve hallway traffic use.

Report Heard
In other matters, the board heard a report from a committee studying reading disabilities, discussed problems in the transition of the Lincoln Technical College as it becomes part of a Southeast Nebraska Nebraska Technical College, and talked about several matters which will have an impact on the 1973-74 budget.

The task force on reading disability, a 24-member group of educators and laymen, proposed a $230,000 program to help erase reading problems for students with special learning disabilities.

Students with such problems tend, for example, to confuse "d" and "b" or confuse letter order, reading "was" for "saw." The task force recommended making the Orton-Gillingham reading program available to all schools by the fall of 1974, assigning a special staff member to coordinate the program and hiring a number of additional staff members.

Problems Identified
In the Tech College discussion, Prasch said his staff had already identified a host of problems to be solved in the transition.

Among them, he said, are the contracts of staff members on the Lincoln payroll who will be working for the new Southeast Tech District as of July 1. Those staff members hold contracts with the Lincoln schools till Sept. 1.

He also said the equivalent of $170,000 in Lincoln district general fund monies needs to be recovered for the public school

Ed Board Members Debate Ways Of Filling Vacant Seat

The Lincoln Board of Education, facing the task of filling the second board vacancy in less than a year, Tuesday began discussions on formulation of a new policy for board appointments.

Catherine Angle has announced she will resign her seat on the board effective June 30, leaving a vacancy to be filled by the board.

Robert Magee resigned last year, and the board appointed Ted Dewey, who has since been elected to his seat.

Prompting Tuesday's discussion was the beginning of a reorganization of administrative handbook policies and procedures related to operation of the board.

But the discussion brought to the surface obvious concern on how the board should go about filling vacancies.

Several board members said they've already received advice from persons interested in how the vacancy will be filled, especially since the last election was so recent.

John Lux, board president, said he believes the board should take such recent election results into account.

But Lou Roper and Marvin Stewart disagreed.

Vote Result Opposed
Stewart suggested "election results should not be used," since those who lost might not want to work with someone else who defeated them in an election.

And Roper said he had been contacted by several persons who told him they believed a Lincoln newspaper editorial suggesting the board appoint the person who ran fourth this spring constituted an "out-of-place" comment from the press.

Roper said he had talked with citizens who were disturbed by their feeling that the "newspaper wants to run everything in town."

Supt. John Prasch suggested the board might want to consider establishing a method for community participation short of a special election.

Suggest Names
He noted the board could ask a committee of citizens to suggest three or four names for board consideration, or provide for a caucus to nominate persons for vacancies.

Prasch also suggested the board, when ready, should nominate persons itself in one meeting and then vote the next, with both occurring in open sessions.

But when several board members suggested that might embarrass those who were nominated and not selected, Prasch said such an arrangement should be an executive session matter.

He also said the board should consider whether it wanted a unanimous vote in the selection, a consideration which delayed the selection of Dewey last fall.

After considerable discussion on the entire subject, Prasch said he would bring a written proposal for board consideration at another informal work session next week.

Highest Bid For Lake Near Kramer $15,200

The high bid Tuesday was $15,200 for 67 acres of land and water near Kramer owned by the Lower Platte South Natural Resources District (NRD), according to Hal L. Schroeder, general manager.

Schroeder said of five bidders participating, Ron Keller of Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Earl R. Anderson of Omaha submitted the high bid.

The auction, conducted by Robert Crosby, attorney for the NRD, was held at the Lancaster County maintenance building in Kramer.

The land at Dam 27C, Upper Salt project, includes a lake with a normal pool covering about 33 acres.

Schroeder said the high bid may be accepted or rejected by the Lower Platte South NRD board of directors when they meet in June. The directors can reject the bid as being too low.

Sale of the NRD property was proposed as an alternative to raising the county mill levy for funds needed to acquire land in the north Oak Park.

Schroeder said there are no more plans at this time to dispose of any more NRD-owned land through such a sale.

Even if the Lower Platte South NRD board decides to accept the high bid, the NRD will continue to maintain the easement on the dam structure, as part of the NRD flood control project.

Kansas Man Convicted Of Aggravated Kidnaping

Concordia, Kan. (AP) — Kenneth Wayne Barry, 48, Lenexa, Kan., was convicted over the weekend of aggravated kidnaping by a Cloud County District Court judge here. Barry was charged with abducting a 12-year-old Concordia girl last May 31. Judge Marvin O. Burmsett, who heard the case without a jury, set sentencing for June 14.

The victim was found later the same day, tied up in an abandoned farm building near Geneva, Neb. Barry was arrested a few hours later near York, Neb., following a high speed chase.

Barry also is wanted in Kansas City in connection with sexual assaults against four women.

Hospital Trustees

The Lincoln General Hospital Board of Trustees will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday in the hospital board room.

Chief Of UNL Libraries, Dr. Heussman, Resigns

Dr. John Heussman has resigned as director of libraries at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln due to health and personal reasons.

Chancellor James H. Zumberge, in announcing the resignation, said Heussman will be on leave until Aug. 1 and will then be reassigned to the library staff.

Mrs. Frank Lundy will be acting director until Aug. 1 and at that time Zumberge said he would recommend to the Board of Regents that Dr. Adam Breckenridge, professor of political science, be appointed as acting director for one year. A search committee will be appointed to recommend a successor to Heussman.

"Dr. Heussman feels that his greatest contribution to the university can be made as a professional library staff member," said Zumberge. "We appreciate his loyal support and his willingness to serve under most difficult circumstances as director of libraries."

Heussman has been director of libraries at the University since Aug. 1, 1972, coming from the University of Illinois.

THESE NEW ORE-IDA ONION RINGS TASTE AS GOOD AS THEY LOOK.

Look. Ore-Ida onion rings are formed into perfect circles. And they stay that way. Don't fall apart in the package. Or on your plate.

Taste. Ore-Ida onion rings are made with fresh chopped onions. They give you more sweet onion, more true onion flavor. That's because they have a thinner coating of batter that clings, through oven baking, to a golden, french fried crispness.

Ore-Ida onion rings. Try a bag or box. 10¢ says they taste as good as they look.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Wednesday

Special for 11-year-old Cheryl Delaney of Chicago, Ill. Your classmates will catch up to you. It is not a matter of the other way around. You are a very thoughtful, precious, Virgo and these rebuffs, which seem so hurtful, are serving as the cornerstones of your character and potential. Your classmates do not intend to be cruel but, like so many of us, they often talk and act without thinking. You are a thoughtful, sensitive, expressively talented young Virgo and, in the not-too-distant future, your classmates will sense it and you will have an abundance of friends. I am forwarding to you one of my books, "Astrology Guide for Teen-Agers." I hope you will enjoy reading it. And remember that being alone is not the same as being lonely.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Avoid tendency to be extravagant. You can please one close to you without smothering budget to smithereens. Know it and proceed accordingly. Taurus person could play key role in ahead for security.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Co-operate with Aries. Be flexible. Social gathering might lead to meaningful contact. Cycle is such that you succeed by putting forth original proposals. One in authority is on your side. Be aware of it and be confident!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Philosophical outlook is necessary. Don't take things at face value. Look deep for valid answers. Sagittarian is likely to be in picture. Accent is on hospitals, institutions, charitable work.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Friend could cost you money. Key now is to perceive necessity of basic change. Gemini, Virgo persons are in picture. Gain shown through wiring. Joint efforts are profitable if you obtain factual information.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Correct errors in your own back yard before telling others what they should do. Means strive to be more diplomatic. Many admire you but may also have recently been rubbed the wrong way. You will understand.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are able to discover mistakes and to correct them. Pisces plays significant role. Key now is to define, refine and perfect techniques. You get reasons for recent happenings. You are in better position to evaluate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You get needed support. You are fitted with additional responsibility. Potential for profit is also greater. Emotions are very much in picture. Love interest is accentuated. Meaningful experience is indicated.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): Benefits indicated through aid of Sagittarian. Relative tasks require attention. Be aware of fine points, apparent minor details. Get to heart of matters. You may have much to do with Leo person.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You collect what you need. You are able to build on more solid structure. Your chances for advancement improve despite apparent obstacles. Cancer person is in picture. Creative abilities are in spotlight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Element of timing is on your side. You can make the right decision at crucial moment. Key now is to remain flexible. Be free to decide, to travel and to experiment. Sagittarius and Leo are likely to be involved.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be aware and thorough. And do something about it. Means act on what you know to be correct. Waiting for inspiration would be an error. Methodical and logical approach is required. Dig in and get job done.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have sense of humor and could also have a weight problem. You are funny and versatile. You have affinity for language and you are fond of travel. You often find yourself "talking with your hands." July stands out as your most significant month of 1973.

ACLU Challenges Arrest Of Students In Caravan

By The Associated Press
A civil liberties union lawyer brought an action against federal officials Tuesday on behalf of 18 persons, mostly from Colorado State University in Fort Collins, arrested last month while traveling toward South Dakota during the Wounded Knee Indian holdout and blockade.

The suit challenges the constitutionality of the federal anti-riot act which serves as basis for the prosecutions, and contends there is no probable cause to believe that any of the 18 committed any crime.

A caravan carrying the group was halted April 28 on U.S. Highway 83 about five miles north of Valentine, Neb., and the arrests followed. A preliminary hearing for the arrested persons was held at Valentine May 17, after which they were bound over to federal court. They have been released on their recognizance pending further prosecution.

'Blatant Disregard'
In a complaint filed on behalf of the petitioners, Joseph N. De Raimes, regional counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union at Boulder, Colo., said the prosecutions "are so extraordinary and unusual in their blatant disregard of plaintiff constitutional rights that they must be halted before further prejudice results."

The arrests were said to "represent a dramatic assertion of power by the United States Department of Justice which has determined, by executive fiat, to interdict all potential sympathizers with the political position of the American Indian Movement from traveling to the state of South Dakota."

The petitioners ask a writ of habeas corpus and declaratory and injunctive relief.

Hearing Urged
Specifically, they ask that the matter not be referred to a federal grand jury until a hearing is held on the issues raised.

They ask a writ of habeas corpus "for the purpose of inquiring into the cause and legality of their custody and of delivering them from such custody pursuant to law."

They ask a declaration that their rights and freedoms to travel, to assembly, to free speech, to due process of law, to equal enjoyment and protection of the laws and to be secure in their persons and property from unlawful interference by the federal executive department have been and are being abridged.

Named as defendants are William Schaphorst, U.S. Attorney for Nebraska, and John D. Coupland, federal magistrate before whom the hearing was held in Valentine May 17.

Those arrested and on whose behalf Tuesday's court suit was brought include Douglas H. Phelps, Amherst, Mass.; James Henry Starr, Boulder, Colo.; Terry W. Hintz, Geneva, Wis.; and Patrick F. O'Toole, Rueben A. Aragon Jr., Michael Weinberg, Steven Scott Funk, Florence A. Judson, Timothy John Kloberdanz, May Jane Medina, Grant Langgston Missimer, Ann Kathryn Viviano, Mary Theresa Brzana, Susan Lee Dorsey, Nancy Louise Halbert, Dennis Duane Leight, Michael Ernest Paterson and Carol D. Williams, all of Fort Collins.

Documents filed with the court indicated the trip toward South Dakota followed a campus meeting at Fort Collins the day before, at which AIM leader Vernon Bellecourt had been a speaker and at which the shooting death at Wounded Knee of Frank Clearwater was discussed. The documents suggested the caravan was en route to Rosebud, S.D., to participate in religious ceremonies honoring Mr. Clearwater, while negotiations were in progress for a funeral procession to Wounded Knee for the added purpose of bringing in food and medical supplies.

Man Thinks His Vehicle Hit Kansan

Cortland, Neb. (AP) — The driver of a vehicle that struck and killed a Kansas man turned himself in Tuesday, and said he did not know he had hit anyone. Authorities had classified the accident as a hit-and-run, but Tuesday afternoon said no charges would be filed in the case.

John P. Bell, 27, of Marysville, Kan., was killed early Tuesday on Highway 77, about seven miles south of here.

The driver of the vehicle was identified by the Gage County attorney's office as Kenneth VanAmburg of Cortland.

Van Amburg said he turned himself in to Gage County Sheriff Fred Steinkamp after hearing a report of the accident on a broadcast.

He said he recalled that he had hit something in the area where the accident occurred, but that he thought it was a rubber tire. He said he checked his car and the camper he was pulling and saw evidence that he had hit someone.

Bodies Of 3 Paxton Men Recovered

Sutherland (AP) — The bodies of three men who drowned when a boat capsized in Sutherland Reservoir have been recovered, the Lincoln County sheriff's office said Tuesday.

The victims were identified as John Lehl, Ken Still and Marvin Suhr, all of Paxton.

A fourth man, Brady Fry, also of Paxton, swam to an island Monday and was rescued. He was hospitalized in North Platte and treated for shock.

Nebraska Rancher Urges 'Hard Look At Research'

Nebraska rancher Merlyn Carlson of Lodgepole Tuesday issued a challenge to researchers, administrators of research and beef cattle producers "to take a hard look at research."

Carlson, who is chairman of the American National Cattlemen's Association beef research committee, was one of the opening speakers at the first Great Plains Beef Symposium scheduled through Thursday at the Nebraska Center.

He related the need for an improved research effort to two recent major events: the imposition of food price ceilings as increased consumer demand for beef sent prices upward, and the tightening of funds available for research. Research is vital to increasing productivity, and increasing productivity is necessary if beef producers are to stay in business, he stated.

The Lodgepole rancher reminded producers that they, too, face the challenge of accurately identifying problems and potentials. "We should first be able to give advice to researchers and then get behind a project in unity to secure the support in manpower and funds," he said.

"Too often the reverse of this plagues our industry, resulting in ill decision of research effort and money, and consequently breakdown of support from the industry," he declared. "We as an industry cannot afford to be ahead of research, making decisions based on assumptions rather than fact."

"What we need at this point is stability, with the beef industry well in tune with research and research well in tune with the industry. We also need further stability in communication so that terms like 'cutability,' 'adjusted weights' and 'modern type' mean the same thing to each of us," Carlson continued.

"We as an industry have been forced to put together fragmented research data into a total program, and consequently have found some big pitfalls. Therefore, more research data should include and cover a broader spectrum of application and use."

Carlson emphasized that his criticism was meant to be constructive, "since we really have so little time to do so much in improving production efficiency that we must all be pulling together and towards the same objectives."

In concluding, Carlson told of efforts by his beef research committee to create national emphasis on research funds. "Mr. John Airy recently appeared on our behalf before the House Agriculture Appropriation Sub-committee. He told them, if the beef industry is to continue meeting the demands of consumers who are eating twice as much beef as 20 years ago, research funds must not be reduced.

"The beef industry's productivity and efficiency is unexcelled by most other countries. But it cannot meet the production demands now being placed upon it if loss of research funds continue.

Zorinsky Has Door Removed From His Office

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Mayor Edward Zorinsky began his first full day in office with his promised "open door" policy: he had a maintenance man remove one of the two wooden doors between his inner and outer offices.

During his campaign, Zorinsky said he meant his promise of an "open door" to the mayor's office literally.

When the door was removed, Zorinsky invited visitors to have a seat inside his office while they waited for him to finish business with other callers.

Lowland Flooding Reported Along Dropping Platte River

Only local lowland flooding was occurring along the Platte River across Nebraska Tuesday, although the river was reported above flood stage at some points in the central and eastern parts of the state.

The National Weather Service said the Tuesday morning stages indicate that crests have been reached on the eastern Platte and a slow recession is now in progress.

Little change is expected on the Platte from North Platte to Duncan in the next few days, the report said.

Sandbagging was reported in the Brady area, but just as a precautionary measure.

Heavy rains over the Memorial Day weekend were blamed for renewed minor flooding along the Platte and other streams in the state. The Platte has been high for several weeks due to snowmelt in the Wyoming mountains and heavy rains last month in Denver.

Some flooding was also reported along the Big Blue River in Butler County in the Surprise and Ulysses areas. However, the Butler sheriff's office reported late Tuesday high water in those vicinities was receding, although many county roads were inundated.

At Two Rivers Recreation Area north of Ashland, about 20 acres of campground remained under water from the Platte River overflow.

Fieldwork Halted By Heavy Rains

Fieldwork came to a standstill in many areas of the state due to heavy rains on Memorial Day weekend, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said Tuesday in its weekly crop-weather report.

Considerable soil erosion occurred and some fields will need to be replanted, the bureau said. Prior to the rains, farmers were busy preparing seedbeds, planting row crops, applying fertilizer and herbicides, breaking surface crusts so germinating plants can emerge and harvesting alfalfa.

Fuel Said Worrying Harvesters

State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher said Tuesday rumors that wheat harvest combine crews will demand assurance of adequate fuel supplies before doing any cutting are true.

However, he said he doesn't think the action will affect the harvest.

"I feel that in most parts, the fuel will be available," Kreuscher said. "I feel that the fuel will be available in the localities I think that this requirement can be met."

Kansas Gov. Robert Docking expressed concern that some harvest work would be bypassed.

A survey in Kansas showed that a few custom operators are not going out this year because they fear a lack of fuel could leave them stranded.

Kreuscher said there are enough custom operators with regular customers to get the wheat in with little difficulty.

New Focus Sought By Catholic Agency

The Catholic Social Service Bureau of Lincoln outlined proposed new directions for its future work as it met Tuesday with one of the Lincoln Community Service subcommittees which have begun hearings on the 1974 United Fund budget.

Father Edward Tuckek, the bureau's director, told the subcommittee that since availability of children for adoption has fallen off, the agency is looking for a new focus for its family-oriented services.

He told the LCS subcommittee that Catholic Social Service hopes, during 1974, to devote more of its time to educational and preventive services, hoping to head off family-related difficulties before they get to the crisis stage.

Program Underway
The agency has, he noted, already begun an education program for engaged couples, reaching 1,698 individuals in 1972 with help in understanding marriage and parenthood.

Tuckek said the agency is proposing other such efforts, with the help of mini-courses, in such topic areas as child-raising, teenage problems and child abuse or neglect.

conZOOsations

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Hi! I'm Linus.
I look just like a cuddly, little bear. And I just love honey. So it's no wonder at all that people call me a honey bear.

Believe it or not, I'm not a bear at all. I am a Kinkajou (Poto flavus) and we Kinkajous actually are close relations of the Raccoons.

I was born here at the Zoo just five months ago. My parents, Kinky and Sweetie, and I all live in the Nursery. Our relatives still live in the wilds of South America where they sleep all day in the trees and hunt for small birds and other animals at night.

Besides being carnivores (meat eaters) and nocturnal (more active at night), we Kinkajous also have some other fascinating characteristics. We are great tree climbers. We have prehensile tails, which permit us to hang onto tree limbs while our four legs are otherwise occupied. And we also have long, long tongues, the better to reach into hives and eat honey with.

Being a honey fan, it is no wonder that one of my heroes is that famous, incomparable honey bear, Winnie the Pooh, who often sings, on his quests for honey, a song that goes something like this: "Isn't it funny how a bear likes honey? Buzz! Buzz! Buzz! I wonder why he does?"

We have been so very excited, and busy cleaning house, as of late because that popular bear, Winnie the Pooh, will pay us a visit Saturday.

Yes, Winnie the Pooh will make a personal appearance here at the Lincoln Children's Zoo Saturday, and he will observe a birthday party given in his honor.

The Pooh party is just one of the many varieties of birthday parties which are offered to Lincoln's youngsters by the nice people who run the Zoo.

At the party to which Winnie has received a special invitation, the children will get a cake in the shape of that famous honey bear, plates and cups which follow that same theme and helium balloons with Winnie's picture on them.

Of course, we aren't sure yet whether the party will be held in the Crooked Farmhouse, the Fire Engine House, or the Livery Barn — the three party locations — but whichever, it is sure to be a huge success.

Although this is my first year at the Zoo, I have heard that the party themes are quite different from those in the past years. This year's are so exciting that I just must tell you about them. In addition to honoring Pooh at the parties, honors also go to the Zoo, Snoopy, Clowns, Cowboys and Indians, Smokey the Bear, Minnie and Mickey Mouse, the Train, and Raggedy Ann and Andy.

Those lucky children who are invited to birthday parties held at the Zoo, also have the opportunity to visit with myself and my fellow animals while they are here.

That all goes to show that the Lincoln Children's Zoo is more than a zoo with animals. The zookeepers certainly care about the animals here, but they also care about the children.

For instance, they sponsor Children's Day — one of the most exciting days of the year, when the train is robbed and Zooville Square is the site of barroom brawls galore — Birdcage Theater productions, the musical comedy plays by the Overlook Fountain, and several educational programs.

I have been asked to remind you that the Junior Keeper and Curator Programs will begin soon. Focusing on the care of domestic pets and reptiles, the Keeper Program, for youngsters between the ages of 7 and 11, also will feature several field trips. And the Curator Program, for those 12-18 years of age, emphasized the extensive study of animals and their behavior.

An Art Course will be offered for the first time this year. Mrs. Richard Martin will be the teacher, and the subjects will be none other than us, your friendly animal friends at the Lincoln Children's Zoo, who are becoming more and more anxious by the minute about the forthcoming visit from our famous pal, Winnie the Pooh. Don't forget to stop by the Zoo Saturday for a visit with Pooh Bear—and us.

'Dreamy' Affair Could End In Disaster

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY I am very much in love with a married man. It began two years ago when I went to work for him. I am married and have two children, six and eight. My husband is a nice guy, but nothing special. We don't communicate at all anymore. His whole life is sports.

Abby, I want more than anything else in the world to have my lover's child because I know I can never have him. He says he loves me, but he will never leave his wife because he loves her, too — in a different way. Also, he says having an affair is one thing, but he doesn't believe in breaking up another man's home.

I have expressed my desire to have his child, but he says it would be the worst thing I could do to myself. I don't agree with him. I feel that if our affair ends — as most affairs do, at least I will have a part of him to remember him by. Who would that be hurting as long as nobody but us knew it?

MY DREAM
DEAR MY: Your "dream" sounds like a plot for a grade

"B" movie. Wake up! You're courting disaster with such hazardous notions.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I invited a friend to dine with us at a family restaurant to celebrate her birthday. Across from us sat a couple, their son, who looked about 4 years old, and another adult.

The child talked loudly and incessantly. At one point he amused himself by loudly saying the ABC's over and over, making it impossible for us to converse.

When our guest went to the restroom, the boy followed her and tried to get in. Fortunately the door was locked. The boy's parents witnessed the whole thing and didn't say a word. After our guest vacated the restroom, the boy didn't go in, which indicated he didn't have to use it, he only wanted to annoy her.

That child ruined our evening. When we left we spoke to the owner about it and he said the parents and that child ate there often and there was nothing he could do about it.

Please print this to let parents know that they should either train their children to behave in public or leave them home. They have no right spoiling an evening out for others.

NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: Parents of ill-mannered children don't care whose evening they spoil. You should have complained directly to the parents or to the management earlier in the evening, and when it became clear that nobody cared, you should have gone elsewhere.

DEAR ABBY: A woman

signed "IGNORED" wrote to complain that her husband made it plain that he preferred the TV set to her, and you replied: "Maybe it's because he can turn off the TV when he wants to." You should have added that he can also turn the TV "ON" when he wants to.

ROBERT B.
DEAR ROBERT: I would have, had I thought of it. Thanks for the assist!

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GOT THE BLUES": Chin up, honey.

A big disappointment today could be a blessing in disguise tomorrow.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LOREN: Superstar misses you. Please call your mother collect immediately.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Know Your Antiques

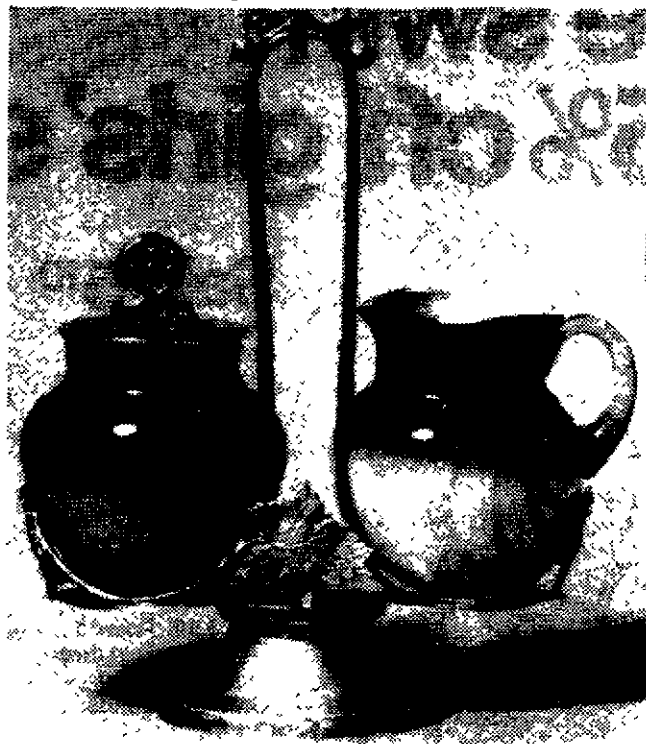

The famed Chinese peach blow porcelain, known as the Morgan vase, was hidden for more than 50 years because of the publicity when it was sold in 1886. Mrs. Mary Morgan owned the vase that was once the property of a Chinese mandarin.

The vase was sold as part of the Morgan estate and the newspapers described the crushed strawberry color, the shape, and the high price paid for the vase. Many of the newspapers were critical of the vase and the "Crazy Widow Morgan." No one believed that a piece of ceramic could sell for so much money.

The name peach blow became fashionable and cosmetics, glass, and ceramics were made to capitalize on the famous name. Three American glass firms made a glass called peach blow. The peach blow of each firm was slightly different in color. Wheeling Peach Blow glass was patented by the New England Glass Company. The glass also was made by Hobbs Brockunier and Co. of Wheeling, West Virginia, in 1887.

The Mt. Washington Glass Co. of New Bedford, Mass., made a rose to blue-gray glass which they called peach blow. Peach blow was also made in England. The Gundersen-Pair-point Glass Works of New Bedford, Mass., reissued some peach blow glass in 1952.

Glass target balls are rare collectors items. They were made only for a very few years and were made to be destroyed. Shooting competition was popular as a sport in America from 1830 to 1865. The main matches were held with live pigeons as the targets. The pigeons were unreliable targets because they often flew in the wrong direction. The idea of shooting at live birds finally upset the general public so a new target was developed for shooting matches.

Chit Chat with Roxi

Dear Roxi:
My boy friend has been in the army for two years and is coming home next week and wants to announce our engagement. Now the bad part, I do not want to get engaged or married. I'm just not that sure he's it and, secondly, I'm just not ready but he is and he wants to get married now. I've been debating for the longest time about what to do. I'm scared that if I tell him I don't want to get married just yet, that I'll lose him for sure but yet I don't want to get married. Help!

Kit
Tell him face to face when he gets home that you do not want to get married! Get it over with quickly. Prolonging it will only make things worse. If he does love you, he'll realize that you are the wise one and that marriage is something that is a big step in life and one you do not want to hurry into.

Dear Roxi:
My parents are divorced and I live with my mother. Every time I get invited out she becomes "ill". I just say I'm leaving her for a couple of hours and she's ill instantly. Really, I don't know what to do with her. I'm all she's got, true, but I'm becoming a hermit. I want to go out and have a good time like everyone else but I dislike opposing her. What, if anything, is there to do?

Amy T.
When asked, go! Your mother is extremely insecure, thus her insecurity makes her extremely possessive. Try explaining to her that you need to get out and have a good time with people your own age that that doesn't mean you don't enjoy being with her, too. I would say it's about time you had some fun of your own.

Dear Roxi:
The boy I've been dating lately is extremely possessive. He makes me feel like I have an obligation to him. I detest this feeling, but how in heavens name can I get it across to him without hurting him? He thinks I need to be protected.

E.L.
Be protected from what? It is acceptable, even kinda nice for a boy to be protective, but it is not nice for a boy to be possessive. I think that if you have this feeling with him and it bothers you then quit dating him, now. No boy has the right to be possessive unless the girl indicates she wants it that way.

Picnic Set

The John Chapman family reunion picnic will be held Sunday, June 3, at the Antelope Shelter.

The picnic, held every year, honors the John Chapman family who came to Lincoln when there was only one house in the town and homesteaded south of Lincoln, according to a family spokesman.

Opening lead - king of hearts.

Let's assume you're in four spades and West leads a heart. You win with the ace and, let's say, enter dummy with a trump to lead a club to the king.

West, a foeman worthy of your steel, wins with the ace and returns a trump. You win and lead another club, but West takes it and plays still another round of trumps. As a result you eventually go down one, your losers consisting of three clubs and a diamond.

An unlucky hand, you might say, since the contract would have come home quite easily had East had the ace of clubs, or had the trumps been divided 2-2, or had West not defended in such a thoroughly uncooperative way. His repeated trump leads prevented you from ruffing two clubs in dummy and so brought on your defeat.

But when you examine the matter more carefully, you are forced to conclude that the person responsible for the unsatisfactory outcome was none other than you yourself.

It would have been far wiser to play a low club from your hand at trick two — in order to make certain of two club ruffs in dummy and so guarantee the contract.

The trump lead to dummy at trick two opened a Pandora's box that in turn permitted further trump leads from the enemy to frustrate your plans.

It may seem unnatural and self-defeating to lead a club away from the king instead of a club towards the king, but that is the kind of play you must sometimes make to insure a contract. The right play is the right play — even if it does seem unnatural.

Norris Music Boosters Plan Sale, Car Wash

The Norris Music Boosters will sponsor a bake sale and car wash to be held Saturday, June 2, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The bake sale and car wash will both be held in Cortland at Bonebright's Store and Hartwig Garage, respectively.

Proceeds from the two events will be used to help finance the Norris Marching Band's trip to the Sun Festival in El Paso, Tex., which will occur later this year.

A stereo recording featuring the fifth and sixth grade and junior and senior high school bands will also be available for purchase Saturday.

Single Parents Plan Discussion

"Sex and The Single Parent" will be the discussion topic when a group of members of Parents Without Partners meet at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Lost 5 to 10 Pounds With 9-Day Diet Plan

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

This week I am here to help you get ready for summer with its revealing swim suits, bikinis and play clothes. First, are you going to allow five to 10 pounds of overweight to spoil your fun? You can lose it in just nine days. Whether you lose five pounds or 10 depends partly on your physical activity and your metabolism, but lose you will if you stick to the diet!

Here are the menus for tomorrow, the second day of my new Nine-Day Bulge and Budget Beater Diet.

BREAKFAST

1/2 grapefruit, 1 piece of whole wheat toast, black coffee or tea with lemon.

MID MORNING

LUNCHEON

slice toast, fish fillet, lemon or soy sauce, broiled half tomato with herbs, salad greens with vinegar, 1 glass buttermilk.

DINNER

2 raw carrots, 1 moderate portion chicken, roasted, boiled or broiled, half cup zucchini squash, mixed salad greens with plain yogurt dressing, fresh fruit, apple or pear.

EVENING

Club soda
This is one of the days when you could take dinner with you and cook lunch at night.

If you would like to have my new Nine-Day Bulge and Budget Beater Diet in booklet form, send 25 cents and an eight-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper. It will slim you, but not your pocketbook!

To do it right doesn't mean it will cost more. See the professionals...

FACTS ABOUT VALUE PATTY

Value Patty, our new mixture of freshly-ground beef and textured vegetable protein, offers you another weapon in the battle of the budget. It is not intended to replace ground beef but to offer you a lower-cost choice in the meat department. It is a combination of 75% ground beef and 25% water-textured-vegetable-protein mixture, resulting in a nutritionally equal product of high quality protein. The vegetable protein used has been approved by the United States Department of Agriculture for use in the school lunch program.

Value Patty looks, tastes, smells and handles like ground beef, but costs you less per pound. You get more useable-product because it has less shrinkage and cooking loss. It is very juicy as it tends to retain most of its natural juices.

Use Value Patty instead of ground beef in any of your favorite ground beef recipes. Excellent results can be achieved using an electric or charcoal grill or habachi. However, some care should be exercised not to overcook Value Patty, especially over direct heat such as a grill or habachi. Cooking time should be reduced somewhat.

I have tried Value Patty in a variety of ways for my family and we were well-pleased. We could not tell the difference in taste when Value Patty was used in combination with other foods, but we did notice less shrinkage. Try one of my favorite recipes or one of your own real soon.

PASTA

From the globe and what delicious food and health benefits it offers! Pasta, of course, is a well-known favorite in our country. It's easy to cook, it's healthy, it's delicious, it's versatile, it's economical, it's a complete meal for good health.

Pasta is the generic name for a whole family of macaroni products: spaghetti, macaroni and egg noodles. All are made from durum wheat and water; egg noodles have egg added for more taste and nutrition. Each member of the pasta family comes in a wide variety of shapes, sizes and styles.

Great deal of the calorie content in an eight ounce serving of macaroni or spaghetti comes from the sauce and oil. The macaroni and spaghetti are low in fat. Egg noodles have about 20% more calories than one cup of sauce with vegetables and meat. But the low fat content of macaroni is a great asset.

How to serve pasta: Boil pasta in salted water. Drain, then toss with sauce. If you're using a meat sauce, add meat to the sauce and cook for 10 minutes before adding pasta. If you're using a vegetable sauce, add vegetables to the sauce and cook for 10 minutes before adding pasta. If you're using a cheese sauce, add cheese to the sauce and cook for 10 minutes before adding pasta. If you're using a tomato sauce, add tomato to the sauce and cook for 10 minutes before adding pasta. If you're using a meat sauce, add meat to the sauce and cook for 10 minutes before adding pasta. If you're using a vegetable sauce, add vegetables to the sauce and cook for 10 minutes before adding pasta. If you're using a cheese sauce, add cheese to the sauce and cook for 10 minutes before adding pasta. If you're using a tomato sauce, add tomato to the sauce and cook for 10 minutes before adding pasta.

FROM CAROL'S RECIPE FILE...

SPAGHETTI JULIENNE

- 1/4 lb. Bacon
- 2 Tbs. Olive Oil
- 2 Tbs. Butter
- 1 Clove Garlic or 1/2 Tsp. Garlic Powder
- 2 Cans Julienne Strips of Ham (about 1/2 lb.) or 1 12-oz. can of Luncheon Meat in Julienne Strips
- 1/4 Cup Chopped Parsley
- 1/2 Tsp. Salt
- 1/4 Tsp. Pepper
- 3 Eggs, beaten
- 1/4 Cup Sliced Ripe Olives
- 2 Tbs. Pimentos, Sliced
- 1/2 Cup Grated Parmesan Cheese
- 1 8-oz. pkg. Spaghetti, Cooked and Drained

1. Brown bacon in electric fry pan; drain, crumble and reserve bacon; pour off fat.
2. Add oil, butter, garlic and ham to pan. Sauté lightly.
3. Add spaghetti, bacon, cheese, parsley, salt and pepper; stir well. Turn off heat.
- NOTE: Preparation can be done ahead of time through step 3. Reheat over low heat and continue with step 4.
4. Pour beaten eggs over and quickly toss to coat spaghetti evenly. Add olives and pimentos; toss. Decorate with parsley. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

73% County Population Growth Called 'Reasonable' Projection

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The Goals and Policies Committee Monday night labeled "reasonable" population projections for Lancaster county which show that between 290,000 and 304,000 people will be living in the county by the year 2000.

However, the committee strongly pointed out that these population projections "do not seem consistent" with the Goals and Policies Report. That report called for zero population growth within a 50-year period.

The meeting of the committee and city and county elected officials is the first in a series of meetings to give public review to the updating of the Comprehensive Plan and Transportation Plan.

Accordingly, County City Planning Department representatives presented population projections, land use forecasts and transportation uses for the year 2000.

Washington Firm Planner Veri Borg reported that a Washington, D.C., consulting firm helped draw up the population projections.

That forecast calls for a county population of 290,000 by 2000 — 73% jump over the 1970 population figure.

If IBM develops its tract of land in Stevens Creek, Borg said, the firm would bring in at a minimum 14,000 additional people.

The consultants also predicted that 267,000 people will be living in Lincoln by the year 2000 — and with IBM, 281,000.

Disagreement Goals and Policies Committee members disagreed on whether these projections are valid and whether such growth is desirable.

Doug German said that the Bureau of Business Research is projecting lower population figures for Nebraska based on a lower birth rate index. He argued that the forecasts for Lancaster County are unreasonable and too high.

Roger Schluntz added that it is also a question of "whether we want to live in a community of 300,000 people."

However, other committee members disagreed and one member asked what right the committee has "to deny others the right to live in Lincoln."

The committee voted down the original motion expressing dissatisfaction with those population forecasts.

But, the committee did voice its concern over the magnitude of development predicted by those population figures.

Committee Chairman the Rev. Robert Jeamey pointed out that the committee recommended in the Goals and Policies Report that city and county governments encourage zero population growth. That recommendation was rejected by both the County Board and City Council.

Tapering Off Instead, those two groups called for a gradual reduction in population growth.

The committee also endorsed the land use plan showing additional urbanization around the perimeters of Lincoln by the year 2000.

Concurrently, the committee rejected an alternative land use plan calling for extensive development into Stevens Creek.

Borg reported that future development and annexation over the next 27 years would include areas along Antelope Creek, Beals Slough, south of the Regional Center, along West A, around Capitol Beach Lake, Arnold Heights and north of Interstate-80.

Additionally, Borg said projections calls for construction of the Stevens Creek treatment plant and development of the IBM tract in the watershed.

He cautioned that residential development in Stevens Creek hinges on IBM's development.

The total land use area for Lincoln by the year 2000 is projected to cover an 82-square mile area.

The committee also generally endorsed the model used to analyze and forecast travel by 2000.

In other action the committee referred to the Technical Committee for response a list of 44 questions submitted by the Coalition Against the Radial on the planning process and projections.

Additionally, the committee agreed that only members attending the Monday night lengthy session or the August meeting will be entitled to vote at the final meeting scheduled for sometime in late 1974.

The committee also designated its Monitoring Committee to present a slate of candidates to its August meeting for consideration.

Committee Chairman Jeamey submitted his resignation at the meeting.

Yorty Lead Slim

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Incumbent Sam Yorty led black City Councilman Thomas Bradley by a narrow margin Tuesday night in initial returns in the city's mayoral election.

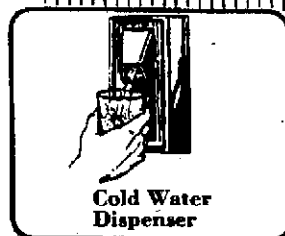

The early lead taken by Yorty, 63, the self-styled "maverick mayor," was bolstered by absentee ballots which normally tend to be more conservative than the voting at large.

But Bradley, the 55-year-old son of a Texas sharecropper, appeared to be gaining in his bid to become the first black to head the nation's third largest city.

Two local network affiliates predicted Bradley would win, based on an analysis of voting in selected precincts.

City Council Deadlocks On Yolande, Cornhusker Drive-In Theater

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The City Council deadlocked 3 to 3 Monday on the application of Davis Theaters to build a three-screen drive-in at Yolande and Cornhusker Hwy.

The deadlock came despite attempts to iron out traffic control problems in the area.

Councilmen Dick Baker, John Robinson and Bob Sikyta voted to approve the special permit, while council members Sue Bailey, Helen Boosalis and Steve Cook voted against it. Councilman Max Denney declared a conflict of interest and did not vote.

Attorney Hyman Polsky pointed out that the developer had agreed to increase the number of stacking lanes on the site from two to four — the equivalent of eight city blocks to hold drive-in patrons.

Poor Intersection
Previously, Public Works Director Bob Oberger had reported that the Yolande-Cornhusker intersection is a poor one due to the site problems caused by angling Yolande.

A report from the traffic engineering department confirmed that any use of the property in question would add significantly to the traffic problems at the intersection.

However, Polsky asked, "Is the landowner to be prevented from using his property if it's the decision of traffic engineering that the intersection wasn't designed properly to handle the traffic?"

Greater Problems
Most of the 6.3-acre tract is zoned for light industry. Polsky argued that a Hinky Dinky type store or K-Mart would generate greater traffic problems than would the theaters since traffic would be constant — rather than only in the evening.

He told the council that the movie starting times would be staggered to help control traffic flow and agreed to several amendments unanimously approved by the council:

- that all exits from the drive-ins be onto Yolande.
- that all turns be right-turns only.

- that a fence abutting Cornhusker be constructed to prevent visibility of the movie screens from the highway.

Despite approval of the amendments, however, three council members still opposed the application.

Mrs. Boosalis said she had "mixed feelings" on the proposal, saying, "I think there's a better way to develop this property."

And Mrs. Bailey expressed concern over traffic problems created by vehicles west-bound on Yolande turning left into the theaters.

The council will take another vote on the application next Monday.

In other action the council split on two zoning requests. By a 4 to 3 vote the council defeated a zoning change from E-1 Multiple to F Restricted Commercial on the southeast corner of 13th and G.

Addition Sought
William Kimball, Joyce Ayres and Richard Smith want to build onto the present office building on the site or construct a new building.

Voting to deny were Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. Boosalis, Cook and Robinson, while Baker, Denney and Sikyta voted for approval.

And by a 4 to 3 vote the council approved the application of Everett Evnen for a zoning change from D Multiple to K Light Industry on the northeast corner of 20th and L.

Evnen wants to enlarge the freezing area of his Lincoln Poultry plant.

Robinson joined Baker, Denney and Sikyta in voting for approval, while Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. Boosalis and Cook voted for denial.

In other action the council:
— Denied application of Noel Chadd for change of zone from A-2 Single to H-2 Hwy Commercial to G-Local Bus at 14th and Cornhusker Hwy.
— Denied application of John Cejka for change of zone from B-2 Family to D Multiple on northeast corner of 33rd and Y.

Council A Little Miffed At Way Board Appointments Presented

A somewhat disgruntled City Council Monday expressed displeasure at the manner in which appointments to city boards are handled by holding off action on approving appointments to six such boards.

The appointments were forwarded to the council for its approval by Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf, who made appointments to the following boards:

- Board of Warm Air Heating, Ventilating and Comfort Cooling Examiners and its appeals board.
- Building Code Board of Appeals.

— Dangerous Buildings Code Board of Appeals.
— Code Study Committee.
— Lincoln Transportation Board.

Councilman Dick Baker said, "I thought we had an agreement between the council and the administration that we'd discuss these appointments first."

"This bothers me," he stated. City Atty. Dick Wood pointed out that appointments to several of the boards (the examiners and its appeals board and the Building Code of Appeals) are made by the mayor only.

Councilman Steve Cook explained he thought the mayor submitted those appointments to the council as a matter of courtesy.

However, Councilman Bob Sikyta said he was concerned about the appointment to the LTS Board.

Sikyta, emphasizing that he was not criticizing any of the nominees, said he had contacted several other people who said they would serve on that board and who lived north of O St.

He said such appointments would be in line with broadening the representation on the various boards and commissions.

The mayor is recommending that A. Joan Bowers fill the unexpired term of County Commissioner Jan Gauger. Mrs. Gauger resigned from that post because she said she no longer had time to serve on the board.

Pay Plan Exemption Bill Vetoed By Exon

Gov. J. James Exon Tuesday vetoed LB236 which he said would "demoralize" most state employees by exempting 5,700 workers from his uniform pay plan recently approved by the Legislature.

In a two-page veto message, Exon said the bill "greatly compromises" efforts to equalize inter-agency salaries for comparable work and widens the disparity between low and high salaries.

LB236 would exempt clerks, secretaries and maintenance personnel at the University of Nebraska, the state colleges, the technical community colleges, the state Board of Education, the Public Services Commission and the Board of Educational Lands and Funds from the uniform pay plan and would allow the individual agency to set salaries.

Agency directors, college professors and management are not included in the pay plan and would not be affected by LB236.

The uniform pay plan sponsored by Exon and passed by the Legislature attempts to bring all salaries for the same job to the same level, especially for those making less than $7,000 per year (approximately 9,102 workers.)

"Since nearly all of the 5,700 positions affected by LB236 fall within that range, this bill in effect removes about 60% of that very group we have tried so hard to protect," Exon said.

Aid Provided For Retarded

Gov. J. James Exon has signed into law a bill providing $500,000 for the next fiscal year for mental retardation programs.

The bill, LB311A, is a companion funding bill to a measure passed earlier by the Legislature to improve mental retardation programs.

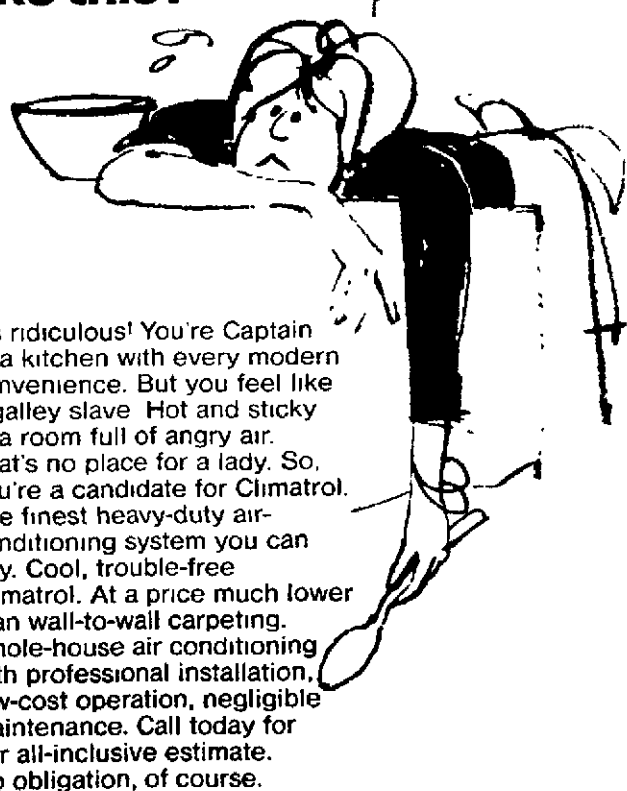

Exon said LB311A would use state funds to help provide "direct service" to the mentally retarded.

Lincolnite Hurt In Cycle Crash

A Lincoln man was listed in "fair" condition at Lincoln General Hospital with injuries he received in a motorcycle accident on Capital Parkway between Randolph and J Sts. Tuesday night, according to police reports.

Police said Dudley Watson, 24, of 2277 Holdrege, was southbound when he struck the curb. The motorcycle flipped into the air and came down on Watson's ankle breaking his leg.

The Man Who Sold Newspapers

When Mark Twain was a young man, he was editor and publisher of a growing newspaper in a small Missouri town.

One day he received a letter from one of his subscribers. The subscriber said that he had found a spider in that morning's edition of his paper. He wanted to know if this was an omen of good luck, or of bad luck. Mark Twain, a hustling space salesman as well as an editor, wrote to his customer:

"Dear Sir:
Finding the spider in your newspaper yesterday morning was neither good luck nor bad luck for you. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which of the town's merchants is not advertising. He will then go to that store, spin his web across the door, and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

State Once Again Funding Municipal Sewage Plants

By The Associated Press
The State of Nebraska "is back in the business" of providing state funds for municipal sewage treatment plant construction, a state official said Tuesday.

The program which has the state put up matching funds for federal dollars and money from the local community had been halted last October after a change in funding at the federal level, said George Ludwig, administrator of grants for the State Department of Environmental Control.

Getting the program rolling again was Gov. J. James Exon's signature last week on LB505, which appropriates $2.3 million for use as state matching money for the federal grants.

At least 13 communities across the state will be eligible to receive the money provided in the bill and thus can begin their plants, Ludwig said.

He said the group includes Grand Island, Dorchester, Belgrade, Hebron, Guide Rock, Humboldt, Hemingford, Hoskins, Holbrook, Murray, Elwood, Alpside and Melbeta.

The backlog of grants and projects waiting for funds should be eased by enactment of LB505, Ludwig explained.

"That was what we needed, we're back in business now," he said.

Under the old system, which ended last October, the federal government put up 50% of the cost and the state and local community each paid for 25%.

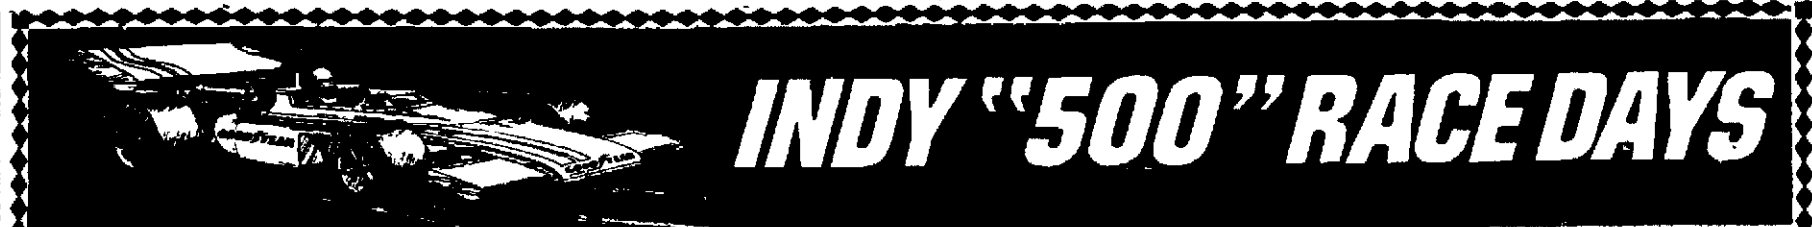

But the federal payments increased in October to 75% and the state voluntarily stopped approving grants at that time until a new formula to provide the remaining 25% cost could be worked out, Ludwig explained.

LB505 provides that the remaining 25% cost will be split evenly between the state and local community, with each paying 12 1/2%.

The bill includes about $300,000 to fund several old projects at the 25% state level but the remaining $2 million will be used to match about $10 million in federal funds, Ludwig said.

Some communities have been told since October that they might receive state funds, but that approval was conditioned upon legislative approval of the formula change in LB505, Ludwig said.

43 Proposed Legislative Studies Assigned

Forty-three proposed legislative studies have been assigned to various committees of the Unicameral for consideration prior to the convening of the 1974 session.

Assignments were accepted on a 35-0 vote of the Legislature last week.

In the past, special study committees have been formed to consider proposed legislation, but lawmakers have decided to use regular standing committees for such assignments now that the Legislature meets on an annual basis.

The studies, by committee, include:

Agriculture and Recreation — Regulations concerning discharge of pollutants; study of solid waste disposal; flood plains; act water and land resources; study, land use program, pesticides, lack of interest in farming on the part of youth; land use plan; study of laws regulations executive orders having an effect on the agricultural industry.

Revenue — Continuation of property tax study, revenue and taxation, military salaries as they relate to taxation.

Judiciary — Administration in the offices of the county attorneys; marriage and divorce laws.

Public Works — Continuation of the study of all Nebraska retirement systems; responsibility for roads and streets in unincorporated areas; water and land resources study; natural gas utilities and the electrical industry.

Transportation — Transportation authority, uniform system of financial control of money used in political campaigns for state offices; salary of members of the legislature, election statutes and campaign spending practices.

Health and Welfare — Health care services delinquent child support payments, all needs for food assistance throughout the state.

Government, military and veterans affairs — Gambling, wagering, lotteries and related subjects; public housing needs.

Appropriations — Federal revenue sharing; study of "people-related" services provided by the state; higher education funding; capital construction planning.

Constitutional Revision — State acquisition of railroad rights of way recreation facilities in Nebraska.

Education — Training in paralegal research; county superintendents; financial aids for higher education; distribution of state aid funds for education.

Executive Board — Study of the energy crisis; computer use at state and local levels; common data definition collection and reporting.

Banking — Branch banking.

Law — State Patrol.

Sugar Beet Acreage Agreed

Denver (AP) — The Great Western Sugar Co. said it has contracted with growers for 319,000 acres of sugar beets with 280,000 acres of that total already planted.

"We've had a wet spring and planting is running behind schedule in many of our areas, but our records from past years show there's plenty of time to produce a good crop in 1973," said Bill L. Phillips, senior vice president of the company.

Last year, Great Western had 311,000 acres harvested under its marketing contract. "We think the present level of contracted acreage could provide us with enough tonnage to run a near-normal campaign" this year, Phillips said.

Youth Charged In Motor Death

Columbus (AP) — A Columbus teen-ager Tuesday was charged with motor vehicle homicide.

Platte County authorities said the charges were filed against Michael Evans, 16. He was charged in connection with the death of 2-year-old Kelly King.

She was struck by a car driven by Evans May 20.

Now you can see "The Graduate" again or for the first time.

Marsh Eyes Treasurer's Job

By United Press International
Republican Lt. Gov. Frank Marsh Tuesday confirmed rumors that he's considering a bid for the State treasurer's job as an alternative to launching what many political observers already believe to be a doomed attack on the voter popularity of Gov. J. J. Exon.

But he also said that he has by no means closed the door to a decision to run for another term as second in command behind another Republican or trying for the top job himself.

"I think he's vulnerable," Marsh said, referring to Democrat Exon.

The only problem, he said, is whether that vulnerability can either be brought to the surface or whether it will emerge by itself in time for campaign use.

If a case for vulnerability can't be built in time, then Marsh said he's not going to sacrifice 20 years of ballot success just so he can carry the Republican Party standard into battle.

"I'm not going to lay that 20 years of political success on the line in a winner-take-all political game of chance and I'm not in any way going to be a fall guy," he said.

Before being elected to the lieutenant governor's job in 1970, Marsh was secretary of state and was never beaten at the polls.

Marsh, unlike other state officers, is constitutionally prohibited from trying for re-election on the same terms under which he got the office in the first place.

The same year he was elected, the voters approved a constitutional amendment which requires the governor and lieutenant governor to run as a team beginning next year. That put an end to having the two jobs split between the two political parties as they were in 1970.

The state treasurer's job will be open because Wyane R. Sanson has served out the two terms law limits him to.

Trial Is Slated On Sarpy Co. Sheriff's Job

PAPILLION, Neb. (AP)—A suit seeking to have the office of Sarpy County Sheriff declared vacant will go to trial June 13.

County Atty. Dixon Adams filed the suit against Sheriff Richard Whitted, contending Whitted is not eligible to hold the office because of a felony conviction.

Adams said he hopes the case will clarify a state law under which an office is considered vacant if the office holder is convicted of a felony. Whitted pleaded guilty to perjury in a federal court last year.

Adams said there is some confusion in the case, because the federal judge suspended imposition of sentence, and placed Whitted on probation for one year.

The case will be heard by Judge C. Thomas White of Columbus in Sarpy County District Court. Judge Ronald Reagan disqualified himself from the case earlier.

Many Not Filing For Tax Exemption

A poll recently completed by Sen. Gary Anderson of Axtell showed that up to half of those eligible for the new homestead exemption for low income elderly apparently had not filed the necessary applications for the exemptions.

Anderson asked county assessors in Nebraska to indicate the number of applications received and to estimate the number of those who would have been eligible.

The 75 assessors who responded to the poll said about 47% of the potential applicants had not applied. The filing deadline is June 1.

A law passed last year provides for an ultimate real estate tax exemption of half of the first $250 tax for those 65 or older.

To meet income qualifications, a single person must have income of $2,000 or less, a married couple with one of the two 65 or older income of $3,500 or less, and a married couple with both more than 65 years of age income of $4,300 or less. All must live in their own homes.

The county assessors said there was a general lack of understanding of the exemption among older persons and that many were also confusing the 1972 law with an earlier homestead exemption which applies to all homeowners.

HEALTH TIP

MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Acne frequently occurs from early teens to the early twenties, and though it may not seem a serious health problem, it often reflects on a person's general health according to the Nebraska Medical Association.

The degree of acne varies from individual to individual. A physician treats acne on an individual basis, since the cause remains unknown. Like baldness, it appears to have hereditary links.

Various prescription drugs are available for acne. Antibiotics are often helpful. The Nebraska Medical Association says that much work is being done on the correction of acne symptoms and on the causes theorized for it.

Cleanliness, good health, avoiding irritants or emotional upsets, and good nutrition are basic remedies for acne. If the condition is severe, the individual should see a dermatologist. Not only can he help control acne, but he can make sure that it is not some other disorder masquerading as acne.

Problems of skin disorders often become magnified in the sufferer's mind, becoming more important than they really are.

While they must have proper medical care and follow prescribed programs for as long as necessary, the individual should avoid dwelling on his condition.

Power, Gas Shortage

San Antonio, Tex. (UPI) — A city utility official said the chances of a power blackout were diminishing with new deliveries of fuel oil and the city was optimistic about receiving full shipments of natural gas.

Hijacking Lull Said 'Tenuous'

Washington (UPI) — Despite a lull in hijackings, the Federal Aviation Administration warned U.S. airlines and airports against slackening security precautions because "the threat of hijacking is ever present."

"I feel the lull is tenuous."

FAA Administrator Alexander Butterfield said in a letter to the agency's regional directors urging "constant vigilance"

Bear Lets 'Em Pass

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet news agency Tass said a newspaper reported that when a bear and two climbers met on a narrow mountain path, the bear raised his paws, backed against a rock to give the climbers room and let them pass.

Autopsy Slated In Lincolnite's Missouri Death

PLATTE CITY, Mo. (AP) — A Platte County coroner's jury ordered Tuesday an autopsy in the death of a Lincoln, Neb., woman who died about a year ago.
At the request of Henry B. Peck, the body of Mrs. Helen Gray Cole Ulrich was exhumed at a cemetery at Riverside. Peck, the woman's son, asked for an autopsy because of his belief she had been poisoned.
Lee Hull, assistant Platte County prosecutor, said letters from Mrs. Ulrich to Peck and another of her children indicated foul play in her death was a possibility.
Peck deposited $1,500 with the county to cover costs of the autopsy and inquest, the first to be held in the county since 1967.

$3,629 Is Collected Turkish Rebel To Be Executed

Contributions to the emergency disaster relief drive of the Lancaster County Red Cross have reached $3,629 from 193 contributors. The previous total was $3,564 from 188 contributors.
The goal is $9,420 and the money will replace money spent on recent nationwide natural disasters.
Budget-Minded Idea
Tel Aviv (AP) — Tourism Minister Moshe Kol said Israel was planning a new program to develop inexpensive accommodations and services for budget-minded visitors.
It was the seventh death sentence against extreme leftists since proclamation of martial law in April 1971. Three have been executed.
Tore and three accomplices were convicted of trying to overthrow the constitutional regime by force. The court commuted to life imprisonment death sentences for the three others.

Lincolnites Look Up—It's Skylab!

Skylab, the orbiting space station, soon will be visible to those Lincoln residents who wish to look for it in the wee hours of the morning, weather permitting.

During a viewing pass, it will appear as a moving star ranging in brightness from equal to the sky's brightest star to barely visible to the naked eye, according to the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala.

Skylab can be seen:

June 4, 3:30 a.m., moving south to east, for about six minutes, its highest elevation will be 27 degrees, which means it will be close to the horizon.

June 5, 2:47 a.m., moving south to east, for about five minutes, maximum elevation is 18 degrees, again, very close to the horizon.

June 6, 2:04 a.m., moving southeast to east, for about two and a half minutes; maximum elevation will be 11 degrees.

Also on June 6, 3:39 a.m., moving southwest to northeast, for about seven minutes, maximum elevation will be 86 degrees, which is nearly directly overhead.

June 7, 2:56 a.m., moving southwest to northeast, for about seven minutes, maximum elevation will be 62 degrees.

June 8, 2:12 a.m., moving southwest to east, for about six and a half minutes, maximum elevation will be 39 degrees.

Also on June 8, 3:49 a.m., moving west to northeast, for about six minutes, maximum elevation will be 32 degrees.

June 9, 3:05 a.m., moving west to northeast, for about five and a half minutes, maximum elevation will be 43 degrees.

June 10, 2:22 a.m., moving west to northeast, for about seven minutes, maximum elevation will be 60 degrees.

June 11, 1:38 a.m., moving southwest to northeast, for about seven minutes, maximum elevation will be 89 degrees.

Also on June 11, 3:16 a.m., moving west to northeast, for about five and a half minutes, maximum elevation will be 22 degrees.

June 12, 2:32 a.m., moving west to northeast, for about six minutes, maximum elevation will be 26 degrees.

June 13, 1:48 a.m., moving west to northeast, for about six minutes, maximum elevation will be 33 degrees.

Also on June 13, 3:27 a.m., moving northwest to northeast, for about five minutes, maximum elevation will be 17 degrees.

June 14, 1:04 a.m., moving west to northeast, for about six and a half minutes, maximum elevation will be 44 degrees.

Also on June 14, 2:43 a.m., moving northwest to northeast, for about five minutes, maximum elevation will be 18 degrees.

Stevens Seeks Lancaster YR Chairmanship

The election will be held at the Lancaster County YR meeting Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the Southwood Community Center.

Public Service

Chief Swanson

The Nebraska Public Service Commission Tuesday elected John W. Swanson of Eustis as its chairman, effective June 1, succeeding Robert T. Marland of Lincoln.

Swanson was elected to the commission in 1968. The coming term will be his second as chairman.

AFSME Ballot

Is Requested

The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSME) and the State Labor Department Tuesday petitioned the State Court of Industrial Relations to order a secret ballot election for determining representation of the department's employees.

The union is seeking collective bargaining recognition for the department's employees.

LAST YEAR FOREST FIRES DESTROYED 200 TREES FASTER THAN YOU CAN READ THIS AD.

Unless you're a speed reader, it should take you about 20 seconds to read this ad
Which is about 5 words per second
Forest fire, in that same amount of time, will have ravaged and burned over 200 trees
Which is about 2 trees for every word you read
Or by the time you finish this sentence 118 trees
And does the damage add up?
In a year's time that's over 420 million trees, over 4 million acres burned and hundreds of thousands of animals left homeless
Not to forget the ecological havoc forest fire will have wreaked where it passed
And it's all such a senseless waste too
Because with only a little time, most man-caused forest fires could be prevented
An extra second to grind out a cigaret
Another minute to pour more water on your fire, scatter the coals, cover it with dirt
A moment to refresh yourself on fire safety
A few extra minutes can save years of growth
And that's time well spent on saving our forests
Just like reading this ad

PLEASE: HELP PREVENT FOREST FIRES.

Hong Kong — Gone with the Far East wind: The attractive slit skirt cheongsam. All girls in Hong Kong wore them — fashions changed only in the length of the slit and the height of the collar.

I saw one last night. A hostess in a tourist bar.

The cheongsam gave way to the miniskirt. Levis had an enormous presentation of blue jeans last night at the Hyatt Hotel. Press reaction: "Should go well in Hong Kong. We look for many girls to appear in jeans."

"The $100 tailored suit that Hong Kong was famous for is a thing of the past," said a colony resident.

Even so, I went down and ordered a couple of suits from Jimmy Chen. Original Jimmy Chen. I met him when they were making "Love Is A Many Splendored Thing." A lot of the American cast got suits made by Jimmy.

Tailored suits now run $150. Friend of mine got one from a back streets tailor for $75. We're waiting to see.

Warm days and a splash of rain in Hong Kong. The Star Ferry still runs back and forth — Kowloon to Hong Kong — for five cents. The boat traffic would drive any other pilots insane.

Big high-pooed junks, family laundry flying from the stern, sail across the bows. Little scullled sampans cut in front. I was on the Star Ferry yesterday when a big Norwegian freighter came in front of us. The Star Ferry pilot didn't even put his engines down to slow. He kept on going and we shaved the stern close enough to reach up and touch the flag.

Somebody put up a building with a gaping crocodile across from the Wanchai police station. As anybody can tell you, this is the worst fengshui.

Fungshui is your geographical position. It can be good or bad, and there are fungshui men who will tell you. For a fee.

It is good fungshui to face an important bank. The money vibrations could rub off on you. Crocodiles are dangerous.

Well, when the crocodile appeared, the crime rate went up.

The boss policeman mounted a couple of old cannon at the entrance. Facing the crocodiles.

Robbed them of their menace. Immediately the crime rate in the district went down to normal. You see?

Crime is high in the Colony. Hong Kong police have started a big publicity program. Jingles singing on the radio.

Roving police patrols in the high crime districts. Road blocks appear quickly after a robbery.

Real estate goes out of sight. Yet high rise office buildings go up all over Hong Kong. A local businessman paid $440,000 for a 24-year lease on a house the other day.

An Australian on a modest salary says: "I pay $700 U.S. for a two-bedroom apartment. The idea of finding a house with a yard — even a garden — is unheard of."

Hong Kong seems to be all square blocks of big apartment buildings. A window sill full of green plants. The family laundry stuck out the window on a long bamboo pole.

With the cheongsam gone, what's there to see? (Copyright Chronicle Publishing Co. 1973)

Study Proposes Office Of County Safety Director

Establishment of an office of county safety director and the appointment of an advisory committee for implementation of improved emergency medical, ambulance and rescue services in Lancaster County were the major recommendations presented the Lancaster County Board Tuesday from a $3,000 study conducted by John Luebs.

Earlier this year, the county board entered into an agreement with the former Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation director to conduct studies of the fire protection service in the county as well as the ambulance, emergency and medical services in the rural areas.

Luebs told the board, in presenting his findings Tuesday, that he hoped the commissioners would look with favor on some of the recommendations and urged them to take the steps to implement a county-wide program.

County Program He suggested that such a program based on his recommendations should be undertaken by the county rather than the city since the rural population would be more receptive to a county organization than anything which the city might organize. The study recommends that the county safety director would serve as a coordinating secretary to the advisory committee and that committee's various task forces "in and for the implementation of improved emergency medical/ambulance rescue services within the county."

Luebs recommends that the advisory committee be established at the implementation planning level "rather than just another planning-topian group that keeps minutes and wastes hours."

The study notes that the problems are "too numerous, interested parties too diverse and the potential solutions too complex" to be handled by one simple committee and thus recommends the appointment of task force groups to deal with individual facets.

Represent County The safety director, as proposed, would represent the county interests in various committees dealing with special matters extant to fire and emergency medical services and would present the county board's position to the state legislators whenever a need is seen for establishing new laws or changing existing laws to strengthen fire and safety standards.

The consultants note that they see this directorship as a permanent post and not as a temporary assignment just to achieve certain reorganization goals. They also noted that the job does not fit under the office of Civil Defense and as long as the county operates independently of the City of Lincoln this office should be a separate entity.

Hunt Says He Proposed Assassination Of Fidel

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — E. Howard Hunt, now serving up to 40 years in jail for his part in the Watergate conspiracy, has written his memoirs in which he says he urged the CIA to have Cuban Premier Fidel Castro assassinated.

Hunt, in a newly written foreword to the book — "Give

Create Employment

Tel Aviv (AP) — The Israeli Cabinet has set up a $100-million investment and loan fund to create employment in academic and professional fields in Israel, the government said. Shares of the fund will be sold in the United States.

Us This Day: The CIA and the Bay of Pigs — said he wrote the book in 1967 as "a memoir for my children and for deposit in the archives of an institution of higher education as an historical document."

He said he had decided to publish it now because the Watergate trial had exposed his connection with the Central Intelligence Agency.

Fire Chief Defends 'Quick Response'

In response to criticism of the competence of the Lincoln Fire Department in a study prepared by John W. Luebs, project director of Human Resource Consultants, Fire Chief Dallas Johnson said Tuesday night that the fire department working in conjunction with the Lincoln Heart Team has the highest resuscitation rate in the nation for heart attack victims.

He said all firefighters with the exception of the most recent hires have had advanced first aid training and cardio-vascular training.

Head of the Lincoln Heart Association Dr. Stephen Carveth told The Star he recently presented a paper to the National Conference for Standards of Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation and Emergency Care Systems in Washington D.C. and the criticism of Lincoln's "Quick Response" system doesn't "stack up" when compared with other major metropolitan areas.

He said the members of the "Quick Response" system have revived over 50% of the heart attack victims who collapsed and had seemingly died.

Contacted Tuesday night, Luebs said reports of the study published Tuesday afternoon were "not fair to the fire department."

He said the statements quoted were accurate, but they "were taken out of context" and "didn't reflect enough of our attitude and recommendations to be completely accurate."

Luebs said the "Quick Response" system is "needed and should be retained."

Luebs told The Star, "All pro and con considerations aside, there is strong evidence to suggest that this service (Quick Response) has made a significant contribution to the preservation of human life within the City of Lincoln, especially with the close coordination between the Fireman and the Heart Team."

Student Riders Prove Inquisitive

By LYNN ZERSCHLING

Star Staff Writer

Has anyone ever tried to hijack a bus?

Do you have any women bus drivers?

What happens if a driver runs a red light?

These and a multitude of other questions were hurled at Lincoln Transportation System (LTS) manager Jerry Rae by a group of inquisitive fifth graders.

The 25 Norwood Park students of teacher Sally Dunham learned about mass transportation in general and LTS in particular on a field trip one afternoon.

The group viewed slides of LTS and took a 22-mile round trip on the Havelock bus — obviously to the surprise and astonishment of some of the regular bus riders.

One woman seemed amazed by the number and complexity of the questions asked by the 5th graders and said she had no idea the vehicles are equipped with a two-way radio communication system.

The bus ride and question-answer session are all a part of a joint program sponsored by LTS and the Lincoln Public Schools.

Any teacher can call the bus system and request that the program be presented to his or her class.

The lecture includes basic information on the buses themselves — length, height and width — and information on riding the buses, such as boarding and getting off and using the proper fare, tokens and transfers.

In the two months the program has been in operation, Rae said an average of 1,500 students a month have seen the slides and ridden a bus.

"Our future bus riders are these kids," he exclaimed.

But, to the Norwood Park fifth graders — the bus ride was "neat," "like wow" and just plain "fun" — especially when the whole group got to collectively pull the buzzer at the end of the line.

Starting On Promise

The Nebraska basketball banquet had just ended, a banquet to honor the Husker team that had just completed a 9-17 year, 4-10 in the Big Eight, when head coach Joe Cipriano came up to this writer.

"I promise you that we won't have another year like this one again," Cipriano said firmly. And in the two months since that mid-March promise Joe has indicated with action that he wasn't just trying to strike up a conversation.

On paper, at least, Cipriano has done the best job of recruiting in the more than 75 years that the University of Nebraska has been suiting up a basketball team.

He started by getting the two best players from his own state, Sidney's Rick Seidel and Fairbury's Bob Siegel, the latter a highly-sought star his critics were saying he could never get.

Then came Mark Enright, a 6-9 standout from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and three Coloradans, 6-6 Phil Chambers, 6-7 Ricky Harris and 6-8 Ken Vecchio.

Cipriano topped off his super recruiting year with 6-10 Texan Ron Taylor and a 6-0 playmaker guard from Atlanta, Ga., Gary Fitzsimmons, son of former Kansas State coach Cotton Fitzsimmons.

None Lacking For Attention

None of the eight were lacking for attention from the nation's top college basketball powers. It wasn't as if they were out looking for some place to hang their basketball shoes.

"Lonnie (assistant coach Porter) was a big factor," Cipriano points out. "And being able to show them that work had begun on a new facility was also a big help."

It's entirely probable that had Cipriano had nothing to show them except the ancient NU Coliseum that none of the out-of-staters would have put their name on an NU letter-of-intent.

And it's questionable if either of the two Nebraska stars could have been persuaded to come to their home-state university with the prospect of playing four years in the concrete dungeon.

We have repeatedly told critics of Cipriano that it was hard to see how anyone could be critical of the NU coach when he had nothing to work with in recruiting other than that old barn.

Another obvious aid in the recruitment of the eight prep stars is that all eight certainly are coming to the NU campus with the idea that they can step in as starters in their freshman year.

Monkey On His Back

With the credentials those eight are bringing to the NU campus, Cipriano is fully cognizant of one other thing.

"I've put the monkey on my back now," he says with a smile. "Now I've got to win."

One potential problem that always exists any time you put a group of high school basketball stars together is that of molding them from individual stars into a team. Someone obviously has to be willing to throw the ball in from out-of-bounds.

"I don't think that will be a problem with any of these players," Joe says. "I've seen all of them play and they all seem to be totally unselfish basketball players."

The next four years for Nebraska basketball fans could be much happier ones than the past couple have been.

Nettles, White, Murcer Pace New York Win

Associated Press

The New York Yankees Tuesday displayed the hitting power for which they were feared in their past days of glory and ended Catfish Hunter's scoreless streak of 27 scoreless innings with a 7-1 victory over the Oakland A's.

Graig Nettles hit two home runs, one in the third when he was joined in the home run department by Roy White and Bobby Murcer.

Hunter, 5-3, retired the first four Yankees before Ron Blomberg singled, extending his hitting streak to 17 games.

Designated hitter Orlando Cepeda hit his seventh home run of the season, lifting Boston to a 2-1 victory over California, and Brooks Robinson singled home Paul Blair in the eighth inning to give Baltimore a 3-2 victory over Kansas City.

Bobby Darwin's sixth homer of the season gave Minnesota a 1-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers and George Hendricks drove in three runs with a single and a double to lead Cleveland to a 9-7 victory over the Texas Rangers. Detroit at Chicago was rained out.

In the National League, Chicago Cubs pitcher Rick Reuschel scattered five hits to pick up his fifth victory against three losses by beating Houston 7-1; Luke Walker and Jim Rooker scattered seven hits in pitching Pittsburgh to a 6-1 over Atlanta, while right-handers Scipio Spinks and Diego Segui combined for a five-hitter, pitching St. Louis to a 2-0 victory over Cincinnati.

Robinson's blow decided a pitching duel between Baltimore's Jim Palmer, 5-3, and Kansas City's Paul Splittorff, 7-3.

In another pitchers duel, Bert Blyleven ended up throwing a six-hitter for the Twins while his opponent, Jim Slaton, allowed only three hits until Darwin's blast in the seventh inning.

Cepeda's homer drove in Reggie Smith and proved to be all the scoring needed by the Red Sox when the Angels failed to capitalize on a bases-loaded situation in the eighth inning.

Cleveland scored a pair of unearned runs off Texas starter Lloyd Allen in the first, but the Rangers countered with three unearned runs in their half of the inning.

Spinks made his first start since May 1 and pitched six strong innings before giving way to the veteran Segui. It was the seventh straight victory for St. Louis.

Willie Stargell hit his 13th homer of the year for the Pirates and added a run-scoring

Beatrice Racer Still Critical

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (AP)—Denny Oltman, 28, of Beatrice, Neb., remained in critical condition in a hospital Tuesday with head injuries and a fractured left arm from a racing accident.

Oltman was injured Friday night at the Crawford County Fairgrounds in Denison when his supermodified car left the racetrack, rolled several times and crashed through two fences.

Top Chisox Pitcher Thinks About Fishing

CHICAGO (AP)—Wilbur Wood is excused from worrying about the Tigers so the winning pitcher in the majors is concentrating on bass and bluegills.

Immediately after posting two wins Monday night to raise his record to 13-3, the Chicago White Sox left-hander talked with old teammate Bob Locker of the Cubs about fishing plans.

"We'd like to go for salmon, but there's a time problem because the Cubs play in the day time and we play at night. But we can always go for bass and bluegill," Wood said.

The Detroit Tigers arrived Tuesday in Chicago for a two-game set but there didn't appear to be a way for Wood to get into action against them.

The master of the fluttering, wobbling knuckleball that has baffled American League hitters again this year, got his twin victories Monday night. He pitched the last five innings of a game, which previously had been suspended. The Sox won 6-3 in the 21st inning, and then Wood came right back to pitch a four-hut shutout.

Wood said the 15-minute delay between the games didn't bother him and he said it simply was "the same amount of time you spend while waiting out a long inning."

It wasn't the first time he won a pair in a single day, either. He did it in 1969 while he worked exclusively as a relief pitcher.

Since turning to a starting role, Wood has won 22 and 24 games in the last two seasons.

His shutout was his fourth this year and lowered his earned run average to 1.71. Speculation about Wood's possible 1973 win-total continued to drive Sox fans dizzy. His 13 victories represent half the team's total of 26 which is good enough to place the Sox 3½ games ahead in the American League West. And Wood's 13 triumphs have come in the first quarter of the season.

Since Wood often starts with only two days rest, it is not inconceivable that he could have as many as 20 victories by the All-Star Game.

But he doesn't plan on picking up two victories in a single day often.

Manager Chuck Tanner hinted last year that Wood might start both games of a doubleheader but the opportunity never arrived.

After Monday's 14-inning sting, Wood was asked if he'd like to pitch a doubleheader. "No, not really," he said. "I got away with a limited number of pitches tonight. They were swinging on the first and second pitch much of the time."

The last pitcher to complete and win both games of a doubleheader was Emil Levens of Cleveland in 1926.

RAIN DELAYS '500'

Wednesday Set For Third Try

... FENGLER STOPS RACE

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The Indianapolis 500-mile race, plagued by rain and already marred by a spectacular crash, was postponed a second time Tuesday when officials said the famed track was not safe.

Chief Steward Harlan Fengler, probably the busiest man at the ancient race course he has ruled for 16 years, announced that the third attempt to get the $1-million classic underway will be made at 10 a.m., EDT, Wednesday.

He had told the 178,000 spectators, most of whom were huddled under umbrellas and plastic tarpaulins, that the 2½-mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway was extremely dangerous and unsafe for use.

The 67th running of America's oldest and richest auto race had been set for a noon, EDT, start Monday.

But three rain delays set it back for four hours before Fengler and other officials decided the asphalt was sufficiently dry to provide traction for the 100-mile-an-hour cars.

The 33 starters actually were sent on their way at 4:05 p.m., but most of them had gone only 100 yards before more than a dozen cars were involved in a massive pileup on the front straightaway.

Driver David "Salt" Walther, a 25-year-old comparative newcomer from Dayton, Ohio, apparently lost control of his machine and climbed the home-stretch fence separating the track from the spectator area. His car became a ball of fire, spraying flames and debris on people occupying expensive box seats just 20 feet from the track.

Other drivers became involved and, in the end, two of them were treated for minor injuries. Walther was hospitalized with serious burns. His condition still was listed as serious Tuesday.

Nine spectators also were hospitalized, most for burns and some for eye injuries.

An even heavier shower, the fourth of the day, forced a postponement until Tuesday.

But the 24-hour delay didn't help. The morning brought clear skies — one official had described the dawn as magnificent — but more rain fell before the dampness could be ironed out of the track.

Then intermittent rains began. At one point, the cars were lined up and actually took one parade lap and part of the pace lap before starter Pat Vidan displayed a red flag indicating a halt to the proceedings as a drizzle began to fall.

After that, cars and drivers remained on the front straight for three more hours before Fengler finally sent the racers back into their garages until Wednesday.

Earlier, Fengler fined three drivers $100 each for improving their positions before Monday's aborted start.

They were Steve Krisloff of Parsippany, N.J., the seventh-place starter; Peter Revson of New York City, whose McLaren will go off 10th; and three-time winner A. J. Foyt, whose 23rd position was the worst he has ever had in 16 starts at Indy.

Foyt, because of his poor qualifying effort, had been expected to charge away at the start and quickly make his way to the front.

Krisloff, making only his third start in the big one, was not involved in Monday's crash—neither were Foyt and Revson—but was given a further warning by Fengler.

The 26-year-old Krisloff was told he must maintain a speed comparable to the other upstart starters or be flagged off the course.

Krisloff's car appeared to be affected with engine problems during Tuesday's pre-race laps. It also had appeared to be going slower than the other cars around it on the pace lap Monday. The fines were the stiffest Fengler could impose from the standpoint of money. But because he considered the infractions serious, he recommended to Dick King, director of competition for the sanctioning U.S. Auto Club, that further penalties be considered.

Fengler, 70, was criticized by drivers and car owners for what appeared to be a faulty start of the 1972 race, won by Mark Donohue at a speed of 162.962 m.p.h.

Tulsa, Sooners Meet For Title

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Tulsa

stayed alive in the District 5 NFAA baseball playoffs with a 2-1 victory over Oral Roberts Tuesday night and will meet defending champion Oklahoma for the title Wednesday night.

Oklahoma, which handed Tulsa its first loss of the tournament, 4-1, earlier Tuesday night, needs only one victory Wednesday to earn its second straight trip to next week's College World Series in Omaha, Neb.

Tulsa came back to edge Oral Roberts behind the pitching and hitting of left hander Steve Simmons. Simmons scattered six hits in eight innings and added an RBI single to eliminate ORU, which had advanced to Tuesday's game with an 11-4 victory over Creighton earlier in the day.

Burgmeier Aids Omaha Win

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Relief pitcher Tom Burgmeier entered the game with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth inning and struck out Evansville pinch hitter Bob Ellis to salvage a 5-2 Omaha Royals American Association baseball victory Tuesday night.

Burgmeier relieved Al Autry who had checked the Triplets on seven hits but walked Bobby Mitchell in the ninth to load the bases.

The Royals bunched four hits in the sixth inning to take a 3-2 edge. One of those hits was a line drive double by Jim Clark that was misjudged by right fielder Wilbur Howard who broke forward and leaped but the ball went over his head.

The Triplets scored their two runs in the fourth on two infield hits, a walk and an error.

Me And Connie Tops Ak Stakes Nominees

Omaha — An outstanding field of 2-year-olds has been nominated for the $15,000-added Lady Sponsors' Stakes at five furlongs to be featured Friday at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Topping the list are Me and Connie, owned by Patricia Blass of Little Rock, Ark., and Thirty One Jewels, owned by Mrs. Lola Geary of Clayton, N.M.

Me and Connie has won four of six starts and $42,800, including victories in the Debutee Stakes at Churchill Downs, the Bewitch Stakes at Keeneland and the Ballerina Stakes at Oaklawn Park. She will be saddled by Doug Davis, Jr.

J. C. Geary is the trainer for Thirty One Jewels, unbeaten in four career starts. Her latest triumph came in the $14,282 Riley Allison Futurity at Sunland Park in New Mexico on May 13. The victory was worth $57,141.

Other top candidates include Bobbing Ro, owned by Jim

Former Knight Named NHL Top Rookie

Montreal (AP) — Former Omaha Knight hockey standout Steve Vickers became the first New York Ranger in 19 years to win the Calder Memorial Trophy as the National Hockey League's outstanding rookie Tuesday.

The 22-year-old Toronto native received 103 points in the voting by members of the Professional Hockey Writers' Association in the 16 NHL cities.

The last Ranger player to win the award was Camille Henry in 1954.

In his first pro season, 1971-72, Vickers had 36 goals for Omaha in the Central Hockey League.

Vickers, the Rangers' first-round pick in the 1971 amateur draft after amassing 107 points for the Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association, had 53 points on 30 goals and 23 assists in 61 games in the 1972-73 season with New York.

Fitzgerald Gets Ace On Knolls No. 6

Don Fitzgerald of Lincoln scored a hole-in-one Monday at the Knolls Country Club, using a 7-iron to ace the 92-yard sixth hole.

His playing companions were son Mike and Bob Reason.

Pickard and Floyd Sluka of Phoenix, Ariz., and winner of $32,100 in the Phoenix Futurity; Paul Kemling's Queen's Turn; and the M. H. Van Berg Stable's Road of Roses.

Three-year-olds bred in Nebraska will be spotlighted Saturday in the $15,000-added Breeders' Sprint Stakes at six furlongs.

Prize Wagon and Wooden Marine topped the list of eligibles for the Breeders' Sprint Prize Wagon, owned by M. A. and R. W. Cole of Fairbury, scored an upset victory in the $10,000-added Good Neighbor Stakes last week. Wooden Marine is owned by Bart Ford of Valley and she annexed the $10,000-added Countess Stakes.

Funny Nickel, owned by Omaha Frank Silk, and Larry Leroy, owned by Robert Snell of Hastings, are also among the top nominees

Mayor Says Padres Must Pay To Leave

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Padres will have to pay to leave San Diego for Washington, D.C., San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson said Tuesday.

Wilson told a news conference the City Council intends to hold the National League baseball club to the remaining 15 years of its 20-year lease on San Diego Stadium.

If the lease is broken, the Padres will have to pay damages, he said.

"The position of the city is that we have a binding lease which has 15 years to run," Wilson said. "The breach of it would occasion money damages. We are waiting for some written communication of the team's intention."

Club management announced Sunday that the Padres had been sold to a Washington group for $12 million, and will move to the nation's capital in 1974. The only conditions are approval by other National League club owners, considered routine, and termination of the stadium lease.

The Padres are reportedly ready to offer the city $2.1 million to end the lease. Several City Council members have said they see little chance that a lawsuit to keep the team here would succeed.

"We would like to see the team here but we will examine the options and do what we believe is in the public interest," Wilson said.

He said city attorneys have met with lawyers for the ballclub and will hold further meetings.

The mayor also said C. Arnholt Smith, the Padres' majority owner in San Diego, told him 10 days ago he was going to try to sell the team because of high interest payments on a $10-million loan he took to buy the franchise four years ago.

At the time, Wilson said, he wasn't aware that the sale had been consummated two weeks earlier.

Bluegill Foundation Of Nebraska Fishing?

Largemouth bass, catfish, and northern pike are probably the most sought-after warmwater fish in Nebraska, but another species, the humble bluegill, is the foundation of most of Nebraska's fishing.

That's the opinion of Bob Thomas, who is in charge of managing Nebraska's fisheries resources as chief of the Game and Parks Commission's Aquatic Wildlife Division.

"The bluegill is the key to much of the warmwater fishing in Nebraska, including the Salt Valley Lakes, Sand Hills Lakes, and the thousands of farm ponds throughout the state," Thomas said. "But, the bluegill's role is highly underrated, both in fisheries management and in sporting potential."

Known in scientific circles by the cumbersome handle of Lepomis macrochirus, this sunfish is a central character in Nebraska ponds and lakes. Where bluegills are present, their proper management is absolutely necessary for good populations of game fish such as catfish, northern pike and, most important, largemouth bass. And, the main feature of sound bluegill management is a substantial harvest, both by fishermen and by predators such as the bass.

"Fishermen have often heard fisheries biologists plead with them to take more bluegill, but I don't believe anglers fully understand why we ask this," he said.

"Most anglers know that bass and bluegill live in the same waters, that bluegill are very prolific and can overpopulate a lake, and that bass keep overpopulation partially under control by feeding on small bluegill. "But, they do not seem to realize that they thwart management of bluegill if they insist on fishing for nothing but bass. An angler concentrating exclusively on bass automatically eliminates himself and the bass he catches as harvestors of bluegill," he said.

What man calls "stunting" with bluegill seems to be an inevitable natural condition in most lakes and ponds, unless man intervenes, according to Thomas.

This apparently natural condition is far from what the angler considers ideal. Instead, he wants a somewhat unnatural fish population somehow tailored to his standards, with many bass of all sizes, including a number of lunkers. He also wants an assortment of panfish that provides a few keepers for his stringer as well as smaller ones to serve as forage for the bass, Thomas adds.

"Nature does not often provide such a population, so man must manipulate fish numbers to produce this. Here is where fishing for bluegill comes into play.

"Over the years, fisheries biologists have determined that a body of water will support a given number of pounds of fish, in certain ratios of different species. The figures have been projected to harvest ratios so that, if an angler takes a pair of 5-pound bass from a lake, he or another fisherman would have to balance his effort by harvesting 50 to 100 pounds of bluegill.

"Since the majority of anglers concentrate on bass rather than bluegill, this ideal harvest ratio is seldom achieved. As a result, most bluegill populations are badly underfished," Thomas said.

Despite his tendency to overpopulate, the bluegill is still the panfish most compatible with largemouth bass, and he does well in conjunction with catfish and northern pike. Other sunfish are more prone to overpopulation than the bluegill, and they are smaller in size and less appealing to anglers. Crappie are also likely to overpopulate, and they compete with bass and other predators for minnows, while bluegill live on plankton and insects.

Among the bluegill's endearing traits are his gameness on light tackle, the variety of methods that will take him, and his excellence on the table.

Bluegill can be taken with sophisticated spinning gear or on a cane pole equipped with a bobber and worm. Bluegill are especially sporty when taken on a dry fly or small popper, cast from a light flyrod.

Bluegill will be on their spawning beds in late May and early June, and that is an excellent time to take them. Fish guarding the nest stay in the area until the eggs hatch, so anglers can return to the same spot day after day. And, taking bluegill from the spawning bed is a good management practice. In many cases a fish taken from a spawning area means a nest of bluegill eggs that will not hatch. This is another way of fighting a bluegill population explosion, Thomas concluded.

Romjue Entered In Golf Classic At Scottsdale

Scottsdale, Ariz. — Larry Romjue of Lincoln has entered the National Golfers of America's $500,000 Valley of the Sun Classic in Scottsdale, Ariz.

Romjue will be competing in a series of five consecutive $100,000 tournaments beginning July 10 at McCormick Ranch Golf Club. Each tournament will be a 72-hole event beginning on Tuesday and concluding Friday over the water-lined 7,150-yard layout.

First prize each week will be $12,000 with 10th place worth $2,000 and 40th place worth $1,000.

The field for the Valley of the Sun Classic will be limited to 175 players.

Ex-Husker Kramer Joins Austin Staff

Sherman, Tex. — Larry Kramer, all America offensive tackle at Nebraska in 1964, has joined the Austin College coaching staff.

Kramer, former head football coach at Southern Oregon College, will be football defensive coordinator, head baseball coach, and assistant professor of physical education.

Tourney Canceled

The Colonel Sanders Slow-Pitch Softball Invitational Tournament scheduled for last Saturday, Sunday and Monday was canceled because of rain.

Hill Captures 'Centennial'

COZAD, Neb. (AP)—Barney Hill of Boys Town used his long stride to win the Centennial Mile championship in the Midstates Federation Track and Field championships here Monday.

Hill, a triple gold medal winner in the recent Nebraska prep track championships, ran the mile in 4:23.7 ahead of Clark Hamilton of Shawnee Mission, Kan., who was clocked at 4:25.2.

Steve Allen of Cheyenne, Wyo., was third, followed by Steve Shadd of Bonner Springs, Kan., and Robert Christensen of Hugoton, Kan.

Jim Favrow, 13, of Manhattan, Kan., set a record in the discus throw in the Intermediate Boys Division (12-14) with a toss of 172-7 1/2.

Mutuel Handle, Attendance Gain At Ak

Omaha — Bolstered by a record attendance and mutuel handle on Memorial Day, Ak-Sar-Ben continued to post attendance and mutuel handle gains over a similar period last season.

The average daily crowd of 14,623 is 8.17 per cent higher than last year's 13,518.

The average daily mutuel handle of $941,018 is 4.11 per cent above last season's $906,849.

The mark is expected to be listed as a world record for a 13-year-old in that event. He was also named outstanding athlete in that division.

Nancy Kindig of Hastings, Neb., was named outstanding in the Intermediate Girls Division. In that class, Gwen Gould of Sandy Creek, Neb., broke her own meet long jump record with a leap of 17-3, surpassing the 17-1 1/2 she set last year.

The Master's Mile, for men 35 years and older, was won by Robert Elwood of Lincoln who set a record at 4:55.5. Bob Creighton of Atwood, Kan., was second and Don Childs of Lexington, Neb., third.

About 600 entered the meet from seven midwest states.

Stone Homer Boosts Royals

Omaha (UPI) — Ron Stone homered with one on in the 4th Monday night to head the Omaha Royals to a 7-2 defeat of Evansville in American Association League action at Rosenblatt Stadium.

The Royals scattered 17 hits over eight innings to take the victory, although committing three errors.

The win went to Mark Littell, who is 8-1 on the season. The loss was accorded Archie Reynolds, who is 3-6.

KC-Omaha Kings Sold To KC Group

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City-Omaha Kings of the National Basketball Association have been sold to Kansas City interests by a group headed by Max and Jeremy Jacobs, brothers of Buffalo, N. Y.

The announcement was made by Missouri Valley Pro Sports Inc., owners. Final approval is pending meetings of the stockholders in Cincinnati on June 25 and the NBA's Board of Governors in Los Angeles June 27-29.

The Jacobses own 70 per cent of the stock with 73 others, mostly at Cincinnati, the team's previous home, owning the rest.

Professional Basketball Club, Inc. They said the present front office and coaching staffs will be retained and that this was a condition of the purchase.

Joe Axelson, president and general manager, has accepted a new three-year contract.

Evans has served as vice president and Rosenberg as director of the Kings since the team moved from Cincinnati last summer. They indicated the team will continue to split its home games between Kansas City and Omaha.

Suit Filed Against Two Pharmaceutical Firms

A $510,000 suit was filed in U.S. District Court Tuesday against two pharmaceutical firms in connection with alleged permanent injuries and disabilities resulting from the use of "Contac".

Named as defendants in the suit filed by Kurby C. Kreiter were Smith, Kline and French Laboratories and Menly and James Laboratories which are allegedly in the business of producing, manufacturing, distributing and marketing in Nebraska and elsewhere in the United States the pharmaceutical product "Contac"—a cold and influenza remedy which requires no prescription.

Kreiter alleges that during the months of July and August, 1967 while still a minor he purchased packages of "Contac" and used according to the directions.

The plaintiff contends that as a result of the use of the product he became violently ill and sustained injuries, damages and permanent disability to his body.

According to the petition, the product is "defective" and "unsafe and unfit" for use and "hazardous and dangerous to human health."

The plaintiff contends that although the defendant firms were aware of how use of the product by others had resulted in severe injury, illness and damages, they failed to warn potential users of such possible dangers.

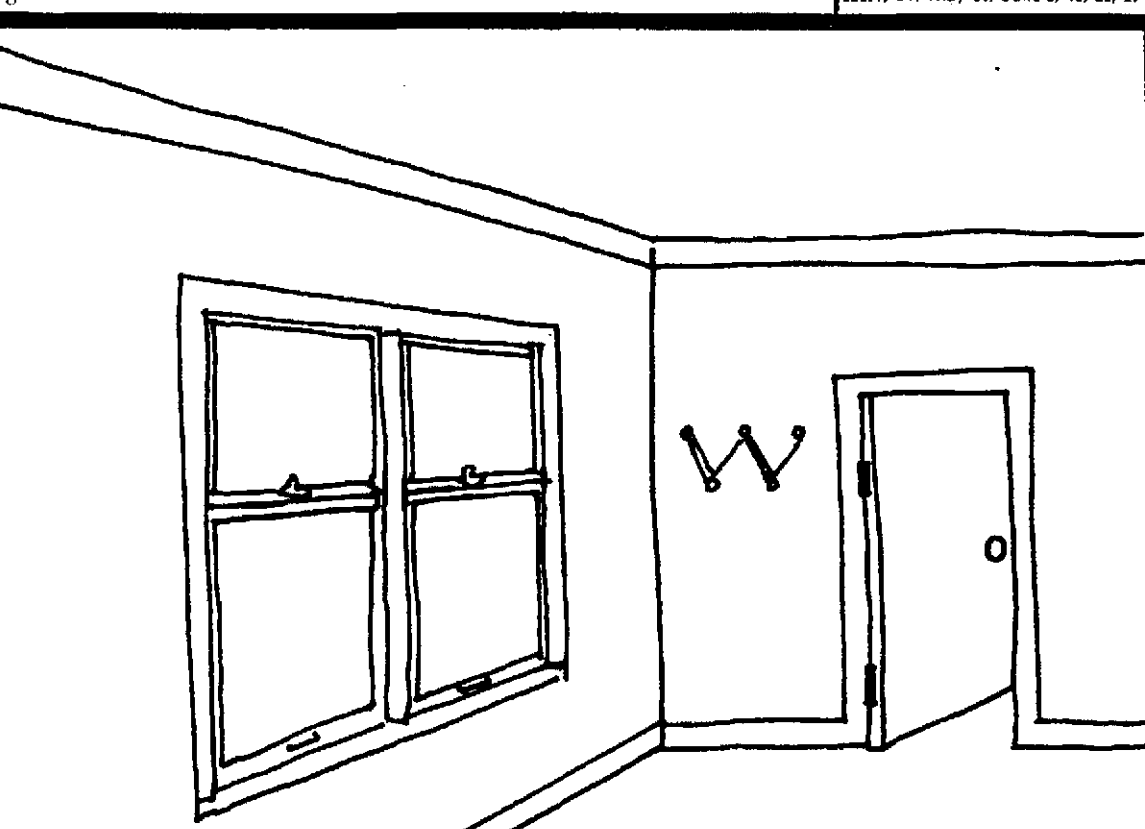

As a result of his using the product, Kreiter alleges he had to undergo hospitalization and surgery for the thrombocytopenic purpura with necrosis of skin and tissues of the right arm and elbow and of both feet.

Because of the alleged damages, Kreiter contends he is totally disabled and has been unable to be gainfully employed and that the injuries and damages will result in future medical treatment and hospitalization.

Nonprofit Units Must Pay Fees

Secretary of State Allen Beermann issued a reminder to nonprofit corporations in Nebraska Tuesday that their biennial reports must be filed and fees paid to the state by June 1.

Beermann said that all corporations failing to file the required reports and pay fees to the corporation division of his office would be dissolved as of June 2 as required by law.

Stocks Drift Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices drifted lower Tuesday as profit takers cashed in on recent gains. Trading was quite light.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 5 7/8 to 925.57, after having risen some 44 points in the previous four trading sessions.

Declines led advances on the New York Stock Exchange by a moderate margin.

"The market was digesting some of the gains of last week," said Newton Zinder, analyst with E. F. Hutton & Co.

Zinder also commented on the news background, which included reports of pressure on the dollar overseas and the government announcement that the composite index of leading indicators had declined in April for the first time in 30 months.

This added to fears, brokers said, that a recession might be in the offing, when the current boom peaks out.

Big Board volume amounted to a piddling total of 11.3 million shares, indicating that most investors had carried their holiday weekend into a fourth day.

Arlene Realty Development was volume leader on the Big Board, dropping 1/4 to 4 1/4. Tradewinds, the West Shore stock, fell 1/2 to 2 1/2.

Browning-Ferris fell 1/4 to 15 1/2. The stock recently received a negative analysis from a leading regional brokerage house.

General Motors was down 1/2 to 67 1/2. Chrysler was down 1/4 to 12 1/2. The Street Journal reported that automakers expected a sales drop in 1973.

Other Big Board prices included TWA down 1/4 to 27 1/2, Continental States Gas down 1/4 to 11 1/2, American Telephone up 1/4 to 51 1/2, and Westinghouse Electric up 1/4 to 35 1/2.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price change index rose 0.2 to 72.78.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY: Could Be Constructive

By Merryle S. Ruker. Wall Street habitually rationalizes every fluctuation in stock prices.

An attempt is made to associate price changes with specific items in the news. Yet the serious operator, is instead of focusing on discounted visible developments, trying to express in prices his expectation of the shape of things to come.

It should be kept in mind that a given event, which is the basis for short term rationalization, has a different significance when the public mood is gloomy than when it is hopeful.

The downward market trend since the averages reached historic peaks in January has been paradoxical, since corporate earnings, the stuff out of which stock prices are made, have been skyrocketing. As a result, with the market declining, price-earnings ratios have been falling dramatically.

But such anomalies don't stump the rationalizers, who hold that, while current business is booming, the rise will quiet down later in the year. Let's examine this line of argument.

If individuals and groups keep their shirts on and the slowdown doesn't degenerate into a more serious recession by convulsive emotionalism, it could be a desirable alternative to an increasingly overheated boom.

The stock market has already discounted the fact that the tree of booming prosperity doesn't rise uninterrupted to the heavens. A slowdown has been anticipated by market behavior, but the risk area concerns whether the correction of boom excesses can be achieved without economic hard knocks.

Certainly the impact of a weak stock market on business sentiment hasn't been helpful. If, however, indeed the slowdown should be limited to healthful proportions, moderation of the pace of business could actually be synchronized with a market rally.

It would be far more dangerous from the standpoint of sustainable prosperity and the maintenance of stock prices even at the present level if the boom were getting out of hand and threatening to become overheated again, with the dismal prospect of an eventual bust, with resultant abnormal unemployment and human suffering.

The constructive alternative would be to quiet down the excitement and seek a healthy level of business activity. This should be the goal of federal fiscal and monetary policy. And in the spirit of inter-group harmony it would be desirable for the participants at the collective bargaining table at which wage rates for 5 million unionized workers will be determined this year to be guided by the national
